War Probers Receive Data On File Raid

Senate Committee Withholds Names Of Individuals Responsible

FBI Probes Alleged Tampering With Files On Garsson Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee disclosed tonight that it has been furnished "the identity of the individuals" responsible for a mysterious, pre-dawn raid months ago upon its secret files concerning the Garsson munitions combine.

It withheld the names "for the time being," but said it understood that the FBI had stepped into the case.

The committee's statement declared:

"The committee has received information to the effect that the committee's files on the Garsson matter, or a part of them, were removed from the committee's office in the Senate Office Building at about 2 a. m., were taken to an office in the City of Washington where the contents were copied, after which the files themselves were returned to the committ's office."

Date Not Furnished

The specific date was not furnished to the committee, but George Meader, its counsel, said that the episode occurred sometime last fall.

"The committee is interested in this matter," said the statement, "because it may afford an explanation for the absence from its files of certain important documents which were known to be in the committee's files until the fall of 1945, and which the committee has been unable to locate x x x for the past several months."

It said that these missing files included:

1. Anonymous communications.
2. Copies of Chemical Warfare Service documents relating to renegotiation.
3. A copy of interoffice memorandum summarizing the disclosure of the investigation up to that time and the documentary exhibits attached thereto.

Audit Reproduction Missing

4. Photographic reproduction of a Chemical Warfare Service audit consisting of 20 to 30 pages, relating to the transfer of the M-74 bomb contract from Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., to Batavia Metal Products and the advance payments in connection therewith.

(The Erie Basin and Batavia Metal Products Companies were two of the 19 closely-linked concerns in the combine which collectively received more than $78,000,000 in war contracts. The committee has (Continued on Page 10, Col. 6)

Commission Can't Agree On Statute For Trieste

PARIS, Aug. 7. (AP)—A special four-power commission appointed by the Foreign Ministers Council to draft a statute for the proposed international zone of Trieste has been unable to reach an agreement, an authoritative peace conference source said tonight. Four separate statutes are ready for presentation to the conference Friday.

Copies of the drafts prepared by the United States, Britain and France were given to newspapermen. The Russians withdrew their proposal for changes and it was not available. A conference source said the Russian draft was substantially different from the other three.

The principal difference, this informant said, was over the nationality of the governor for the international territory.

Book Heirens Wanted Hid Razor Blade

Grand Jury Names Confessed Slayer In Third Murder Indictment

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP) — Authorities today intercepted a razor blade concealed in a book requested by William Heirens as a grand jury named the confessed multiple slayer in a third murder indictment.

State's Attorney William J. Tuohy used the youth's voluntary confession to obtain a murder indictment against him in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43-year-old widow, on June 3, 1945, but the prosecutor refused to say whether he would waive a demand for the death penalty.

Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahy said the blade was secreted in the pages of one of four books Heirens requested from his own library last night—after confessing the kidnap-killing of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan and the fatal stabbing of two women.

The books were brought to the jail but examined carefully before being turned over to the prisoner. They were withheld after the discovery, the sheriff said.

Under 24-Hour Observation

Heirens was placed in a special cell in the observation section of the county jail more than two weeks ago to prevent any attempt at suicide. He has been under 24-hour observation daily by guards working in short shifts.

The confession was the only evidence the state had against the 17-year-old dual-personality University of Chicago student in the Ross case.

Heirens' attorneys, in a move to save the youth from a possible penalty of death in the electric chair, had him confess that slaying yesterday along with the kidnap-killing of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan, and the "lipstick murder" of Frances Brown, 33-year-old former WAVE

Heirens also confessed most of the 29 charges of assault, burglary and robbery pending against him and told of wounding Veronica Hudzinski by firing a shot through her apartment window—an assault with which he had not been charged.

Mental Examination Likely

The mild-mannered, studious youth whose confession solved three of the most grisly slayings in Chicago police records will be arraigned on the Ross murder charge tomorrow before Chief Justice Harold Ward, of the Criminal Court.

The youth's attorneys have announced they would seek a mental examination for him, and it was believed possible such a step would be attempted at his arraignment at that time. Results of the mental examination could be made available when Heirens is arraigned before Judge Ward in the Degnan and Brown cases August 14.

Judge Ward would not be bound by a state recommendation for (Continued on Page 10, Col. 5)

"Ever-Normal Granary" Is Urged By U.N. Agency

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Food and Agriculture Organization today recommended the creation of a world "ever-normal granary" to prevent future shortages and surpluses of food and farm products.

The United Nations agency suggested that a granary program be operated by a world food board with authority to buy and sell commodities for the purpose of stabilizing supplies and prices.

The recommendations will be laid before FAO's second annual conference, to open in Copenhagen, September 2.

The food board would have authority also to dispose of surpluses to needy countries on cut-rate price terms.

"The objective of the board's operations," FAO said in a 12-page report, "would be to insure that sufficient food is produced and distributed to bring the consumption of all people up to a health standard.

The need for additional food is so great that if human requirements could be translated in economic demand, there would be no question of surpluses of the basic foods."

FAO suggested that the proposed world food board operate through commodity committees with the power to hold stocks of the most important commodities.

Former Enemies Will Participate In Peace Parley

Five Nations Will Be Heard; Rules Committee Nears End Of Task

PARIS, Aug. 7 (AP)—The 21-Nation European Peace Conference today invited five former enemy nations to participate in their deliberations beginning Saturday, as the Rules committee, putting aside acrimony, moved with high speed and a show of harmony toward completion of its tasks.

Under an amendment offered by United States Secretary of State Byrnes and adopted unalmously by the committee, representatives of Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland will be heard in the plenary sessions of the conference, as well as appear before committees.

MOSCOW BROADCASTS BYRNES' ACCUSATIONS AGAINST MOLOTOV

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 7—(AP)—The Moscow radio said today that United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes' address to the Paris Peace Conference Tuesday, in which he accused Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of trying to dictate to the parley, had been broadcast over the Russian domestic news service this morning.

"The news bulletin quoted Byrnes in the first person throughout and followed with Molotiv's reply," Moscow said. It added that it took 40 minutes to read Byrnes' speech.

In his speech Byrnes had challenged Molotov to have his remarks published in the Soviet Union.

Rules Committee members plainly showed the strain of yesterday's long and tempestuous session, which broke up at 2:30 a. m. in a victory of the western powers over the Soviet Union on a procedural matter.

However, neither Byrnes nor Foreign Minister Molotov made any reference to the unprecedented diplomatic battle of words which had preceded final adoption of a British amendment providing that recommendations both of a two-thirds vote and a simple majority would be submitted by the conference to the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers.

Committee Clears Decks

The committee cleared its decks by 7:30 p. m., and was ready to report to a plenary session tomorrow afternoon.

One flurry of argument came in a final move before the committee adopted principles of United Nations procedure in the conference and conference committees for questions not covered by the conference's own rules.

Chairman Paul Henri Spaak, of Belgium, had proposed, with the support of Britain and the United States, that rules of the General Assembly of the United Nations be applied to any questions not covered by the rules of this conference. Russia and Norway said the proposal was unnecessary, but it was adopted with a Russian amendment which said the United Nations rules would be the guide "on all questions of procedure" not covered in conference rules.

Rules on committee procedure were adopted in quick succession and unanimously after the committee, without dissent, approved a Yugoslav proposal permitting states neighboring Germany and Italy to present proposals directly to the Big Four without previous reference to the council.

Yugoslavia withdrew a proposal to invite Albania to attend the plenary session at which Italy is to state her case, after British Delegate Hector McNeil said it was a question for the conference itself to decide.

Unanimous Action Asked

Byrnes and Molotov joined in asking unanimous action in the adoption of the section on committee procedure rules outlined in advance by the Foreign Ministers' Council, and it was adopted with two amendments offered by the American delegate.

Australia had withdrawn an amendment for committee procedure which would have had the (Continued on Page 10, Col. 7)

Blue Army Uniforms Are Authorized For 1948

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Uncle Sam's Army will be the boys in blue again in a couple of years or so.

Winter uniforms of that color to be worn off the post have been authorized for 1948. But the Army still is mulling over details such as (a) the shade, (b) shall the coats be dark and the pants light, or (c) both of one color.

A cape with a bright lining, and an overcoat in the new color also are proposed. The colors of accessories are another problem.

It may be later than 1948 before the new dress is available. The Army said it is not going to compete for materials needed now for civilians.

Meanwhile, some of the boys will wear sample uniforms here and there testing styles and the like.

The Army also is considering giving the WAC a livelier green uniform to be worn with russet things.

SURVIVES 13,500 VOLTS—Robert Steinbach, 14, is comforted by his brother, James, 10, in a Baltimore hospital after he came in contract with a 13,500-volt power line of the Pennsylvania Railroad while playing atop a steel freight car yesterday. Police quoted James as saying he saw his brother's hair pulled up toward the wire and that there was a bright flash. Doctors reported his condition as serious but said he would recover.

U.N. Group May Quiz Applicants For Membership

Russia Questions Committee's Authority But Council Says "Yes"

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Russia today sharply questioned the right of a United Nations Membership Committee to ask information directly from applying nations, including Soviet-sponsored Albania and Outer Mongolia, but declined to press for a vote and the Security Council then upheld the committee.

"I consider that the committee has gone beyond its authority," Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian delegate, told the council. "It is not within the committee's rights to seek such information directly from the governments."

Herschel Johnson, United States representative, retorted that he felt a majority of the council members agreed that the committee had the authority.

Russia Previously Voted Down

Gromyko then said he would not demand a vote but wanted notes taken of his views. Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, council chairman, promptly ruled that since there was no move to change the committee's action that it would stand.

Russia previously had been voted down within the committee named by the council in efforts to block the fact-finding and the issue was brought to the council floor at her insistence.

The contested resolutions accepted last week by the committee empowered it to consider statements from an applicant or member state or to solicit information about an applicant directly from the applying nation itself or other members.

Paul Hasluck, Australian delegate, spoke in defense of the committee, declaring that there had been instances in which the council has "shown jealousy" toward other organs of the United Nations, but that he "did not expect it to be jealous of an organ which it created itself."

It was the first meeting of the Security Council in two weeks. No date was set for the next session.

Afghan Bid To Be Considered

The Membership Committee, which includes representatives of all the 11 nations on the council, will meet again at 10:30 a. m. (EDT) tomorrow to take up an application from Afghanistan. Others on the list are Iceland, Portugal, Ireland, Siam and Trans-Jordan.

Action was held up on Albania and Outer Mongolia pending fuller information after several countries questioned their bids in early discussions.

China demanded that the request from Mongolia should be tabled for "a year or so" until more could be learned about it.

FATHER DIVINE WEDS WHITE GIRL APRIL 29, SECRETARY DISCLOSES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7—(AP)—Father Major J. Divine, negro religious leader who moved his "heaven" here from Harlem in 1942, was married April 29 in Washington to a girl listed in marriage license records as Edna Rose Ritchings, 21, white of Montreal, Canada.

Confirming the marriage, Divine's secretary, "Martha Blessed Love," said here today "this marriage is to propagate virtue xxx and to give the whole nation a new political and religious birth of freedom."

The license records disclosed that Divine gave his age as 41, his status as widower, and his address as Philadelphia. He has called his various properties "heavens" for his followers, who take names such as "Prodigal Son," "Tree of Life" etc., when they embrace his cult, the motto of which is "Peace, It's Wonderful."

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert E. Shadd, who said in Washington today that he is a Baptist minister ordained in Boston in 1914.

Passenger Train Wreck Sends 34 To Hospital

HICKORY, N. C., Aug. 7. (AP)—A Southern Railway passenger train bound from Asheville to Salisbury was derailed approximately three miles east of Hickory tonight and at least 34 passengers were treated at local hospitals for injuries of varying degree. No dead were reported.

Thirteen passengers were treated at Richard Baker hospital and dismissed, while at Hickory Memorial Hospital 21 were treated, with eight remaining for observation. Injuries were described as minor at both hospitals.

Meager reports filtering back to the Hickory police department from radio cars at the scene indicated that at least eight coaches and the second engine of a doubleheader had jumped the track. The coaches remained upright.

W. R. Bowman, Hickory police desk sergeant, said reports indicated the train was travelling comparatively light. Uninjured passengers were transferred from the wrecked train to buses provided by Southern Railway and continued on to Salisbury.

The wreck occurred shortly after 7 p. m. The engine that remained on the rails continued to Salisbury, where a wrecker crew was expected to be dispatched to the scene.

Russian Report Denied

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The State Department today described as "totally erroneous" Moscow radio reports that the United States was turning over arms and munitions to the Netherlands Indies under a $100,000,000 surplus war property deal.

Blockade To Bar Jews From Holy Land Is Planned

Britain Reportedly Is Prepared To Begin Naval, Army Operations

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—A British official source said today Britain has prepared to blockade Palestine and launch naval and army operations—perhaps by the end of this week—to choke the flow of thousands of illegal Jewish immigrants into the Holy Land.

In Paris, a spokesman for the Jewish Agency Executive declared that if Britain turned back illegal Jewish immigrants at the shores of Palestine, "the result may be catastrophic."

The British Colonial Office said it could not comment on unconfirmed reports that two Jewish refugee ships, overdue at Haifa, had been intercepted by British Navy ships and taken to Cyprus.

Camp For Terrorists

Meanwhile, press dispatches from Nicosia, capital of the British Eastern Mediterranean island, said a "strongly wired" camp was being prepared there for "a few hundred sentenced terrorists whose dispersal would be helpful to Palestine." The dispatches said reports that thousands of Jews would be taken to Cyprus were unfounded.

In Palestine, the secret radio of Haganah, Jewish underground, said Britain has concentrated troops around Haifa, the main port for the inflow of Jewish immigrants, and declared this "foreshadows complete stoppage of immigration" followed "by renewed police and military operations."

The radio did not say what course might be followed by Palmach, Haganah's well-disciplined army.

The British Army, meanwhile, imposed a 5 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew on shops in the border area of Tel Aviv and Jaffa. The British cruiser Ajax has been dispatched from Malta to Haifa, where two ships carrying refugees from Europe still lie in the harbor.

British Cabinet Meets

The British Cabinet met in special session for two hours today and called in Field Marshal Lord Montgomery and top-ranking officers of the three fighting services, including the First Sea Lord, Adm. Sir John Cunningham.

Not a word leaked from the Cabinet session, and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin—back at his desk today after a 10 days' rest-declined to discuss the matter.

The cabinet still had no final word from President Truman on his acceptance or rejection of a plan adopted by an Anglo-American Experts' Commission to split Palestine into four areas and admit 100,000 Jewish refugees to a semi-autonomous Jewish province.

Some Whitehall observers speculated that disclosure of the reported clamp-down on secret immigration was a deliberate "leak" (Continued on Page 10, Col. 6)

UAW Leaders Will Act On Chrysler Unit Demand

DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—The leadership of the CIO-United Auto Workers held its hand today on the demand of one of its biggest units—Chrysler—for an immediate reopening of wage discussions with management.

President Walter P Reuther, however, came out of a six-hour meeting of the UAW-CIO's International Executive Board to announce the board probably would act tomorrow on the request of the 85,000 Chrysler members. They seek authorization to negotiate cost-of-living increases.

Polio Wave, Worst Since 1916, Spreads

Total Of 5,454 Cases Reported With Epidemics In Some Areas

[By The Associated Press]

The worst wave of infantile paralysis since 1916, reaching epidemic proportions in some localities, has struck scattered sections of the South, West and Middlewest.

Health authorities took steps to check the spread of the disease as the United States Public Health Service reported a cumulative total of 5,454 cases throughout the nation, including all states but West Virginia.

This total compared with 20,000 cases in 1916, 2,913 for the same period in 1945 and 3,992 in 1944, the next worst year since 1916.

In some of the worse areas, the number of cases rose to 10 times as heavy as a year ago.

In New England, some other eastern states and at least two western states reported the incidence of the disease was below last year. Some other areas reported the number of cases at "about normal."

Meetings Cancelled, Pools Closed

Epidemics were reported in Minneapolis, an Arkansas county and three Mississippi counties and the Ohio State Health Director predicted an epidemic year unless a "sharp drop" was noted within 10 days.

Ohio's Health Director urged parents to keep children away from crowds. Some boys and girls conventions were cancelled in Louisiana and Mississippi and some swimming pools in Nebraska state parks were closed.

A survey showed these conditions in other parts of the South:

Louisiana, 167 cases to date compared with 30 for the period last year; Florida 385 against 38 a year ago; Alabama 195 compared with 84; Memphis, Tenn., 30 against eight.

Conditions in the West and Southwest:

California 417, about normal; New Mexico 44, compared with six a year ago; Washington 89 against 76; Colorado 279 cases with 126 in Denver; Oklahoma 77 hospitalized cases and 12 deaths; Montana 41 compared with six a year ago; Nebraska 110 compared with 17 a year ago.

Middlewest Situation

This was the middlewest situation: Minnesota reported 768 cases this year with 65 deaths, 368 of the cases and 28 deaths occuring in Minneapolis and 90 cases with seven deaths in St. Paul; Wisconsin 78 cases with six deaths compared with nine cases a year ago; Iowa 138 cases compared with a normal average of 11; Indiana 37 cases; St. Louis 36 cases compared with six in the 1945 period; South Dakota 50 with eight deaths against 20 a year ago; Ohio 165 cases against 64 last year and 160 for the same period in 1944, an epidemic year, and Illinois 397 cases compared with 87 a year ago.

Missouri reported 77 cases for the week ending August 3, more than double the preceding week and bringing the total for the year to 206, while Kentucky reported 39 cases for 1946 against 19 for the 1945 period.

Canned Vegetable Prices Are Ordered Increased

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Prices housewives pay for canned corn, peas, tomatoes and tomato products were ordered up one to two cents a can today to make up for subsidies which have been dropped.

OPA made the increases effective immediately and also raised price ceilings one cent on 12-ounce packages of frozen corn and peas.

At the same time, the agency knocked out price controls on frozen and canned snap beans packed before last March 1. Price ceilings on snap beans packed since that time were suspended several weeks ago.

The price increases on canned and frozen vegetables meet terms of the new Price Control act. The law requires that when subsidies are cancelled, retail ceilings must be increased commensurately.

As a result, OPA said, number two sized cans of peas and tomatoes will cost two cents more, while corn and tomato juice go up one cent.

Truman, WSB Endorse Pact Hit By J. And L.

Agreement Involves Workers Employed By Jones And Laughlin

FIRST OF ITS KIND IN HISTORY OF U. S.

Corporation Has Requested Injunction To Stay Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — President Truman and the Wage Stabilization Board tonight gave final government approval to a union contract for mine supervisory workers employed by the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

The agreement had been negotiated by Adm. Ben Morrell, administrator of seized mines, and representatives of John L. Lewis's United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employees, a branch of the United Mine Workers.

Involved are 136 supervisory workers and a small number of clerical technical employees of Jones and Laughlin at California, Pa., and Pittsburgh, and clerical and technical workers employed by Industrial Collieries Company, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Johnstown, Pa.

U. S. Still Runs Mines

By its action, the government completed its part in making and approving the first contract in United States history for coal mine supervisors.

The government still is operating the bituminous mines, including the four "captive" Western Pennsylvania operations involved in the agreement.

The Jones and Laughlin mines were the first for which the Lewis union was certified by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent for supervisory workers.

Presidential approval, as well as that of he Wage Stabilization Board, is required under the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act. It was under this act that the soft-coal mines were seized May 22 to end a strike of 400,000 bituminous miners.

Meantime, the United States Court of Appeals is considering the request of Jones and Laughlin for a preliminary injunction to stay enforcement of the contract.

Under provisions of the agreement between Lewis and Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, May 29, a week after the government took over the nation's strikebound soft coal mines, the controversial issue of unionization of mine foremen was to be resolved by following procedures and decisions of the NLRB.

Pact Signed July 17

As soon as the NLRB certified the UMW unit as bargaining agent for the Jones and Laughlin supervisors, Adm. Moreell negotiated a contract to cover wages and working conditions. The agreement was signed for the supervisors July 17.

It provides for an increase of $1.85 cents a day in the pay of supervisors, with overtime beyond 40 hours weekly, and for a $100 pay- (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Flying Boat With Six Aboard Crashes Into Sea

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7—(AP)—The Coast Guard announced tonight that a twin-motored Catalina flying boat crashed into the ocean one mile north of Point Arena light station this afternoon with a crew of six aboard. Searching parties had located two bodies by dark. Point Arena light station is approximately 100 miles north of San Francisco.

The Coast Guard said the plane was searching for a fishing boat which was overdue. The flying boat crashed into the ocean approximately 300 yards off shore.

British Steamer Refused To Remove Towlines From Crippled U. S. Vessel

LONDON, Aug. 7—(AP)—The British steamer Elizabete refused to remove her towlines from the crippled food ship American Farmer despite the wishes of the American owners and contrary to United States naval advice, the captain of the United States destroyer Perry said today.

This first eyewitness account of what British newspapers called a salvage "battle" of the high seas was given by Comdr. C. J. Van Arsdall in a report to United States naval authorities here and in an interview after the Perry docked at Dartmouth.

"At no time did we see any violence, nor was any reported to us," Van Arsdall said. He added that he refused a request from the Elizabete's captain to stop merchant seamen from the American Ranger from going aboard the damaged American Farmer to bring her into port.

Seamen from the Ranger, a sister ship of the Farmer, are bringing the Farmer with its cargo of food into port under its own steam, probably late tonight or tomorrow. The 2,000-ton Elizabete had started towing the 8,000-ton Farmer, damaged in a collision and abandoned 1,700 miles off England a week ago.

Van Arsdall said that when the Americans cast off the Elizabete's towlines, the Farmer was being towed stern foremost at one knot, with the Elizabete yawing 60 degrees to either side of her course.

Half an hour later, under her own power, the Farmer "stayed on an easterly heading making four to five knots and riding easily." Her speed rose to 7½ knots during the night, Van Arsdall added.

The British Ministry of Transport filed a salvage claim against the Farmer and her cargo, valued together at $4,500,000. The United States Lines, which owns both the Farmer and Ranger, has offered to (Continued on Page 10, Col. 7)

Radioactivity, Presumably Caused By A-Bomb, Found At San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7 (AP) — Radioactive chemicals, presumably from the July 1 atomic bomb test at Bikini, have been detected over San Francisco, University of California Hospital scientists said today.

The amounts were too small to affect human beings and "would have to be increased many hundreds or thousands of times" to become dangerous, they said.

The increase was detected about 100 hours after the first A-bomb blast at Bikini, 4,700 miles from San Francisco.

"This was about the right time for the stuff to reach here from Bikini," the scientists reported, using as a basis the time it took radioactivity to be picked up in Washington after the New Mexico test.

The radioactivity was recorded on Geiger counters. Observers said the amount of radioactivity was larger than the usual cosmic ray count.

They reported nothing from the second underwater test at Bikini July 25, but they had not expected anything. This was because the bomb lost a larger percentage of its radioactivity in Bikini lagoon and less was released into the air.

Only a slight increase in radioactivity—perhaps 20 per cent—was observed across the continent at Atlanta, Ga., by Emory University scientists, but they reported a decided jump at Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Robert T. Lagemann, Emory associate professor of physics, said he detected a very pronounced increase about eight days after the blast.

Dr. Lagemann added that he was unable to account for the variation unless the travel course of the radioactive chemicals was affected by wind currents or other atmospheric conditions.

The Emory scientist also made public a report from Prof. A. H. Weber, of St. Louis University, that a slight increase over normal cosmic ray count was noted in St. Louis.

War Probers Receive Data On File Raid

Senate Committee Withholds Names Of Individuals Responsible

FBI Probes Alleged Tampering With Files On Garsson Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee disclosed tonight that it has been furnished "the identity of the individuals" responsible for a mysterious, pre-dawn raid months ago upon its secret files concerning the Garsson munitions combine.

It withheld the names "for the time being," but said it understood that the FBI had stepped into the case.

The committee's statement declared:

"The committee has received information to the effect that the committee's files on the Garsson matter, or a part of them, were removed from the committee's office in the Senate Office Building at about 2 a. m., were taken to an office in the City of Washington where the contents were copied, after which the files themselves were returned to the committ's office."

Date Not Furnished

The specific date was not furnished to the committee, but George Meader, its counsel, said that the episode occurred sometime last fall.

"The committee is interested in this matter," said the statement, "because it may afford an explanation for the absence from its files of certain important documents which were known to be in the committee's files until the fall of 1945, and which the committee has been unable to locate x x x for the past several months."

It said that these missing files included:

1. Anonymous communications.

2. Copies of Chemical Warfare Service documents relating to renegotiation.

3. A copy of interoffice memorandum summarizing the disclosure of the investigation up to that time and the documentary exhibits attached thereto.

Audit Reproduction Missing

4. Photographic reproduction of a Chemical Warfare Service audit consisting of 20 to 30 pages, relating to the transfer of the M-74 bomb contract from Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., to Batavia Metal Products and the advance payments in connection therewith.

Book Heirens Wanted Hid Razor Blade

Grand Jury Names Confessed Slayer In Third Murder Indictment

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP) — Authorities today intercepted a razor blade concealed in a book requested by William Heirens as a grand jury named the confessed multiple slayer in a third murder indictment.

State's Attorney William J. Tuohy used the youth's voluntary confession to obtain a murder indictment against him in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43-year-old widow, on June 3, 1945, but the prosecutor refused to say whether he would waive a demand for the death penalty.

Sheriff Michael F. Mulcahy said the blade was secreted in the pages of one of four books Heirens requested from his own library last night—after confessing the kidnap-killing of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan and the fatal stabbing of two women.

The books were brought to the jail but examined carefully before being turned over to the prisoner. They were withheld after the discovery, the sheriff said.

Under 24-Hour Observation

Heirens was placed in a special cell in the observation section of the county jail more than two weeks ago to prevent any attempt at suicide. He has been under 24-hour observation daily by guards working in short shifts.

The confession was the only evidence the state had against the 17-year-old dual-personality University of Chicago student in the Ross case.

Heirens' attorneys, in a move to save the youth from a possible penalty of death in the electric chair, had him confess that slaying yesterday along with the kidnap-killing of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan, and the "lipstick murder" of Frances Brown, 33-year-old former WAVE

Heirens also confessed most of the 29 charges of assault, burglary and robbery pending against him and told of wounding Veronica Hudzinski by firing a shot through her apartment window—an assault with which he had not been charged.

Mental Examination Likely

The mild-mannered, studious youth whose confession solved three of the most grisly slayings in Chicago police records will be arraigned on the Ross murder charge tomorrow before Chief Justice Harold Ward, of the Criminal Court.

The youth's attorneys have announced they would seek a mental examination for him, and it was believed possible such a step would be attempted at his arraignment at that time. Results of the mental examination could be made available when Heirens is arraigned before Judge Ward in the Degnan and Brown cases August 14.

Judge Ward would not be bound by a state recommendation for

Former Enemies Will Participate In Peace Parley

Five Nations Will Be Heard; Rules Committee Nears End Of Task

PARIS, Aug. 7 (AP)—The 21-Nation European Peace Conference today invited five former enemy nations to participate in their deliberations beginning Saturday, as the Rules Committee, putting aside acrimony, moved with high speed and a show of harmony toward completion of its tasks.

Under an amendment offered by United States Secretary of State Byrnes and adopted unalmously by the committee, representatives of Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland will be heard in the plenary sessions of the conference, as well as appear before committees.

MOSCOW BROADCASTS BYRNES' ACCUSATIONS AGAINST MOLOTOV

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 7—(AP)—The Moscow radio said today that United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes' address to the Paris Peace Conference Tuesday, in which he accused Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of trying to dictate to the parley, had been broadcast over the Russian domestic news service this morning.

"The news bulletin quoted Byrnes in the first person throughout and followed with Molotiv's reply," Moscow said. It added that it took 40 minutes to read Byrnes' speech.

In his speech Byrnes had challenged Molotov to have his remarks published in the Soviet Union.

Rules Committee members plainly showed the strain of yesterday's long and tempestuous session, which broke up at 2:30 a. m. in a victory of the western powers over the Soviet Union on a procedural matter.

However, neither Byrnes nor Foreign Minister Molotov made any reference to the unprecedented diplomatic battle of words which had preceded final adoption of a British amendment providing that recommendations both of a two-thirds vote and a simple majority would be submitted by the conference to the Big Four Council of Foreign Ministers.

Committee Clears Decks

The committee cleared its decks by 7:30 p. m., and was ready to report to a plenary session tomorrow afternoon.

One flurry of argument came in a final move before the committee adopted principles of United Nations procedure in the conference and conference committees for questions not covered by the conference's own rules.

Chairman Paul Henri Spaak, of Belgium, had proposed, with the support of Britain and the United States, that rules of the General Assembly of the United Nations be applied to any questions not covered by the rules of this conference. Russia and Norway said the proposal was unnecessary, but it was adopted with a Russian amendment which said the United Nations rules would be the guide "on all questions of procedure" not covered in conference rules.

Rules on committee procedure were adopted in quick succession and unanimously after the committee, without dissent, approved a Yugoslav proposal permitting states neighboring Germany and Italy to present proposals directly to the Big Four without previous reference to the council.

Yugoslavia withdrew a proposal to invite Albania to attend the plenary session at which Italy is to state her case, after British Delegate Hector McNeil said it was a question for the conference itself to decide.

Unanimous Action Asked

Byrnes and Molotov joined in asking unanimous action in the adoption of the section on committee procedure rules outlined in advance by the Foreign Ministers' Council, and it was adopted with two amendments offered by the American delegate.

Australia had withdrawn an amendment for committee procedure which would have had the SURVIVES 13,500 VOLTS—Robert Steinbach, 14, is comforted by his brother, James, 10, in a Baltimore hospital after he came in contract with a 13,500-volt power line of the Pennsylvania Railroad while playing atop a steel freight car yesterday. Police quoted James as saying he saw his brother's hair pulled up toward the wire and that there was a bright flash. Doctors reported his condition as serious but said he would recover.

U.N. Group May Quiz Applicants For Membership

Russia Questions Committee's Authority But Council Says "Yes"

NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Russia today sharply questioned the right of a United Nations Membership Committee to ask information directly from applying nations, including Soviet-sponsored Albania and Outer Mongolia, but declined to press for a vote and the Security Council then upheld the committee.

"I consider that the committee has gone beyond its authority," Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian delegate, told the council. "It is not within the committee's rights to seek such information directly from the governments."

Herschel Johnson, United States representative, retorted that he felt a majority of the council members agreed that the committee had the authority.

Russia Previously Voted Down

Gromyko then said he would not demand a vote but wanted notes taken of his views. Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, council chairman, promptly ruled that since there was no move to change the committee's action that it would stand.

Russia previously had been voted down within the committee named by the council in efforts to block the fact-finding and the issue was brought to the council floor at her insistence.

The contested resolutions accepted last week by the committee empowered it to consider statements from an applicant or member state or to solicit information about an applicant directly from the applying nation itself or other members.

Paul Hasluck, Australian delegate, spoke in defense of the committee, declaring that there had been instances in which the council has "shown jealousy" toward other organs of the United Nations, but that he "did not expect it to be jealous of an organ which it created itself."

It was the first meeting of the Security Council in two weeks. No date was set for the next session.

Afghan Bid To Be Considered

The Membership Committee, which includes representatives of all the 11 nations on the council, will meet again at 10:30 a. m. (EDT) tomorrow to take up an application from Afghanistan. Others on the list are Iceland, Portugal, Ireland, Siam and Trans-Jordan.

Action was held up on Albania and Outer Mongolia pending fuller information after several countries questioned their bids in early discussions.

China demanded that the request from Mongolia should be tabled for "a year or so" until more could be learned about it.

Albania's application came under

FATHER DIVINE WEDS WHITE GIRL APRIL 29, SECRETARY DISCLOSES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7—(AP)—Father Major J. Divine, negro religious leader who moved his "heaven" here from Harlem in 1942, was married April 29 in Washington to a girl listed in marriage license records as Edna Rose Ritchings, 21, white of Montreal, Canada.

Confirming the marriage, Divine's secretary, "Martha Blessed Love," said here today "this marriage is to propagate virtue xxx and to give the whole nation a new political and religious birth of freedom."

The license records disclosed that Divine gave his age as 41, his status as widower, and his address as Philadelphia. He has called his various properties "heavens" for his followers, who take names such as "Prodigal Son," "Tree of Life" etc., when they embrace his cult, the motto of which is "Peace, It's Wonderful."

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert E. Shadd, who said in Washington today that he is a Baptist minister ordained in Boston in 1914.

Passenger Train Wreck Sends 34 To Hospital

HICKORY, N. C., Aug. 7. (AP)—A Southern Railway passenger train bound from Asheville to Salisbury was derailed approximately three miles east of Hickory tonight and at least 34 passengers were treated at local hospitals for injuries of varying degree. No dead were reported.

Thirteen passengers were treated at Richard Baker hospital and dismissed, while at Hickory Memorial Hospital 21 were treated, with eight remaining for observation. Injuries were described as minor at both hospitals.

Meager reports filtering back to the Hickory police department from radio cars at the scene indicated that at least eight coaches and the second engine of a doubleheader had jumped the track. The coaches remained upright.

W. R. Bowman, Hickory police desk sergeant, said reports indicated the train was travelling comparatively light. Uninjured passengers were transferred from the wrecked train to buses provided by Southern Railway and continued on to Salisbury.

The wreck occurred shortly after 7 p. m. The engine that remained on the rails continued to Salisbury, where a wrecker crew was expected to be dispatched to the scene.

Russian Report Denied

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The State Department today described as "totally erroneous" Moscow radio reports that the United States was turning over arms and munitions to the Netherlands Indies under a $100,000,000 surplus war property deal.

Blockade To Bar Jews From Holy Land Is Planned

Britain Reportedly Is Prepared To Begin Naval, Army Operations

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—A British official source said today Britain has prepared to blockade Palestine and launch naval and army operations—perhaps by the end of this week—to choke the flow of thousands of illegal Jewish immigrants into the Holy Land.

In Paris, a spokesman for the Jewish Agency Executive declared that if Britain turned back illegal Jewish immigrants at the shores of Palestine, "the result may be catastrophic."

The British Colonial Office said it could not comment on unconfirmed reports that two Jewish refugee ships, overdue at Haifa, had been intercepted by British Navy ships and taken to Cyprus.

Camp For Terrorists

Meanwhile, press dispatches from Nicosia, capital of the British Eastern Mediterranean island, said a "strongly wired" camp was being prepared there for "a few hundred sentenced terrorists whose dispersal would be helpful to Palestine." The dispatches said reports that thousands of Jews would be taken to Cyprus were unfounded.

In Palestine, the secret radio of Haganah, Jewish underground, said Britain has concentrated troops around Haifa, the main port for the inflow of Jewish immigrants, and declared this "foreshadows complete stoppage of immigration" followed "by renewed police and military operations."

The radio did not say what course might be followed by Palmach, Haganah's well-disciplined army.

The British Army, meanwhile, imposed a 5 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew on shops in the border area of Tel Aviv and Jaffa. The British cruiser Ajax has been dispatched from Malta to Haifa, where two ships carrying refugees from Europe still lie in the harbor.

British Cabinet Meets

The British Cabinet met in special session for two hours today and called in Field Marshal Lord Montgomery and top-ranking officers of the three fighting services, including the First Sea Lord, Adm. Sir John Cunningham.

Not a word leaked from the Cabinet session, and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin—back at his desk today after a 10 days' rest-declined to discuss the matter.

The cabinet still had no final word from President Truman on his acceptance or rejection of a plan adopted by an Anglo-American Experts' Commission to split Palestine into four areas and admit 100,000 Jewish refugees to a semi-autonomous Jewish province.

Some Whitehall observers speculated that disclosure of the reported clamp-down on secret immigration was a deliberate "leak"

Polio Wave, Worst Since 1916, Spreads

Total Of 5,454 Cases Reported With Epidemics In Some Areas

[By The Associated Press]

The worst wave of infantile paralysis since 1916, reaching epidemic proportions in some localities, has struck scattered sections of the South, West and Middlewest.

Health authorities took steps to check the spread of the disease as the United States Public Health Service reported a cumulative total of 5,454 cases throughout the nation, including all states but West Virginia.

This total compared with 20,000 cases in 1916, 2,913 for the same period in 1945 and 3,992 in 1944, the next worst year since 1916.

In some of the worse areas, the number of cases rose to 10 times as heavy as a year ago.

In New England, some other eastern states and at least two western states reported the incidence of the disease was below last year. Some other areas reported the number of cases at "about normal."

Meetings Cancelled, Pools Closed

Epidemics were reported in Minneapolis, an Arkansas county and three Mississippi counties and the Ohio State Health Director predicted an epidemic year unless a "sharp drop" was noted within 10 days.

Ohio's Health Director urged parents to keep children away from crowds. Some boys and girls conventions were cancelled in Louisiana and Mississippi and some swimming pools in Nebraska state parks were closed.

A survey showed these conditions in other parts of the South:

Louisiana, 167 cases to date compared with 30 for the period last year; Florida 385 against 38 a year ago; Alabama 195 compared with 84; Memphis, Tenn., 30 against eight.

Conditions in the West and Southwest:

California 417, about normal; New Mexico 44, compared with six a year ago; Washington 89 against 76; Colorado 279 cases with 126 in Denver; Oklahoma 77 hospitalized cases and 12 deaths; Montana 41 compared with six a year ago; Nebraska 110 compared with 17 a year ago.

Middlewest Situation

This was the middlewest situation:

Minnesota reported 768 cases this year with 65 deaths, 368 of the cases and 28 deaths occuring in Minneapolis and 90 cases with seven deaths in St. Paul; Wisconsin 78 cases with six deaths compared with nine cases a year ago; Iowa 138 cases compared with a normal average of 11; Indiana 37 cases; St. Louis 36 cases compared with six in the 1945 period; South Dakota 50 with eight deaths against 20 a year ago; Ohio 165 cases against 64 last year and 160 for the same period in 1944, an epidemic year, and Illinois 397 cases compared with 87 a year ago.

Missouri reported 77 cases for the week ending August 3, more than double the preceding week and bringing the total for the year to 206, while Kentucky reported 39 cases for 1946 against 19 for the 1945 period.

Canned Vegetable Prices Are Ordered Increased

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Prices housewives pay for canned corn, peas, tomatoes and tomato products were ordered up one to two cents a can today to make up for subsidies which have been dropped.

OPA made the increases effective immediately and also raised price ceilings one cent on 12-ounce packages of frozen corn and peas.

At the same time, the agency knocked out price controls on frozen and canned snap beans packed before last March 1. Price ceilings on snap beans packed since that time were suspended several weeks ago.

The price increases on canned and frozen vegetables meet terms of the new Price Control act. The law requires that when subsidies are cancelled, retail ceilings must be increased commensurately.

As a result, OPA said, number two sized cans of peas and tomatoes will cost two cents more, while corn and tomato juice go up one cent.

Truman, WSB Endorse Pact Hit By J. And L.

Agreement Involves Workers Employed By Jones And Laughlin

FIRST OF ITS KIND IN HISTORY OF U. S.

Corporation Has Requested Injunction To Stay Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — President Truman and the Wage Stabilization Board tonight gave final government approval to a union contract for mine supervisory workers employed by the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

The agreement had been negotiated by Adm. Ben Morrell, administrator of seized mines, and representatives of John L. Lewis's United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employees, a branch of the United Mine Workers.

Involved are 136 supervisory workers and a small number of clerical technical employees of Jones and Laughlin at California, Pa., and Pittsburgh, and clerical and technical workers employed by Industrial Collieries Company, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Johnstown, Pa.

U. S. Still Runs Mines

By its action, the government completed its part in making and approving the first contract in United States history for coal mine supervisors.

The government still is operating the bituminous mines, including the four "captive" Western Pennsylvania operations involved in the agreement.

The Jones and Laughlin mines were the first for which the Lewis union was certified by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining agent for supervisory workers.

Presidential approval, as well as that of he Wage Stabilization Board, is required under the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act. It was under this act that the soft-coal mines were seized May 22 to end a strike of 400,000 bituminous miners.

Meantime, the United States Court of Appeals is considering the request of Jones and Laughlin for a preliminary injunction to stay enforcement of the contract.

Under provisions of the agreement between Lewis and Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, May 29, a week after the government took over the nation's strikebound soft coal mines, the controversial issue of unionization of mine foremen was to be resolved by following procedures and decisions of the NLRB.

Pact Signed July 17

As soon as the NLRB certified the UMW unit as bargaining agent for the Jones and Laughlin supervisors, Adm. Moreell negotiated a contract to cover wages and working conditions. The agreement was signed for the supervisors July 17.

It provides for an increase of $1.85 cents a day in the pay of supervisors, with overtime beyond 40 hours weekly, and for a $100 pay-

Flying Boat With Six Aboard Crashes Into Sea

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7—(AP)—The Coast Guard announced tonight that a twin-motored Catalina flying boat crashed into the ocean one mile north of Point Arena light station this afternoon with a crew of six aboard. Searching parties had located two bodies by dark. Point Arena light station is approximately 100 miles north of San Francisco.

The Coast Guard said the plane was searching for a fishing boat which was overdue. The flying boat crashed into the ocean approximately 300 yards off shore.

Commission Can't Agree On Statute For Trieste

PARIS, Aug. 7. (AP)—A special four-power commission appointed by the Foreign Ministers Council to draft a statute for the proposed international zone of Trieste has been unable to reach an agreement, an authoritative peace conference source said tonight. Four separate statutes are ready for presentation to the conference Friday.

Copies of the drafts prepared by the United States, Britain and France were given to newspapermen. The Russians withdrew their proposal for changes and it was not available. A conference source said the Russian draft was substantially different from the other three.

The principal difference, this informant said, was over the nationality of the governor for the international territory.

"Ever-Normal Granary" Is Urged By U.N. Agency

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Food and Agriculture Organization today recommended the creation of a world "ever-normal granary" to prevent future shortages and surpluses of food and farm products.

The United Nations agency suggested that a granary program be operated by a world food board with authority to buy and sell commodities for the purpose of stabilizing supplies and prices.

The recommendations will be laid before FAO's second annual conference, to open in Copenhagen, September 2.

The food board would have authority also to dispose of surpluses to needy countries on cut-rate price terms.

"The objective of the board's operations," FAO said in a 12-page report, "would be to insure that sufficient food is produced and distributed to bring the consumption of all people up to a health standard.

The need for additional food is so great that if human requirements could be translated in economic demand, there would be no question of surpluses of the basic foods."

FAO suggested that the proposed world food board operate through commodity committees with the power to hold stocks of the most important commodities.

Blue Army Uniforms Are Authorized For 1948

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. (AP)—Uncle Sam's Army will be the boys in blue again in a couple of years or so.

Winter uniforms of that color to be worn off the post have been authorized for 1948. But the Army still is mulling over details such as (a) the shade, (b) shall the coats be dark and the pants light, or (c) both of one color.

A cape with a bright lining, and an overcoat in the new color also are proposed. The colors of accessories are another problem.

It may be later than 1948 before the new dress is available. The Army said it is not going to compete for materials needed now for civilians.

Meanwhile, some of the boys will wear sample uniforms here and there testing styles and the like.

The Army also is considering giving the WAC a livelier green uniform to be worn with russet things.

British Steamer Refused To Remove Towlines From Crippled U. S. Vessel

LONDON, Aug. 7—(AP)—The British steamer Elizabete refused to remove her towlines from the crippled food ship American Farmer despite the wishes of the American owners and contrary to United States naval advice, the captain of the United States destroyer Perry said today.

This first eyewitness account of what British newspapers called a salvage "battle" of the high seas was given by Comdr. C. J. Van Arsdall in a report to United States naval authorities here and in an interview after the Perry docked at Dartmouth.

"At no time did we see any violence, nor was any reported to us," Van Arsdall said. He added that he refused a request from the Elizabete's captain to stop merchant seamen from the American Ranger from going aboard the damaged American Farmer to bring her into port.

Seamen from the Ranger, a sister ship of the Farmer, are bringing the Farmer with its cargo of food into port under its own steam, probably late tonight or tomorrow. The 2,000-ton Elizabete had started towing the 8,000-ton Farmer, damaged in a collision and abandoned 1,700 miles off England a week ago.

Van Arsdall said that when the Americans cast off the Elizabete's towlines, the Farmer was being towed stern foremost at one knot, with the Elizabete yawing 60 degrees to either side of her course.

Half an hour later, under her own power, the Farmer "stayed on an easterly heading making four to five knots and riding easily." Her speed rose to 7½ knots during the night, Van Arsdall added.

The British Ministry of Transport filed a salvage claim against the Farmer and her cargo, valued together at $4,500,000. The United States Lines, which owns both the Farmer and Ranger, has offered to

UAW Leaders Will Act On Chrysler Unit Demand

DETROIT, Aug. 7 (AP)—The leadership of the CIO-United Auto Workers held its hand today on the demand of one of its biggest units—Chrysler—for an immediate reopening of wage discussions with management.

President Walter P. Reuther, however, came out of a six-hour meeting of the UAW-CIO's International Executive Board to announce the board probably would act tomorrow on the request of the 85,000 Chrysler members. They seek authorization to negotiate cost-of-living increases.

Radioactivity, Presumably Caused By A-Bomb, Found At San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7 (AP) — Radioactive chemicals, presumably from the July 1 atomic bomb test at Bikini, have been detected over San Francisco, University of California Hospital scientists said today.

The amounts were too small to affect human beings and "would have to be increased many hundreds or thousands of times" to become dangerous, they said.

The increase was detected about 100 hours after the first A-bomb blast at Bikini, 4,700 miles from San Francisco.

"This was about the right time for the stuff to reach here from Bikini," the scientists reported, using as a basis the time it took radioactivity to be picked up in Washington after the New Mexico test.

The radioactivity was recorded on Geiger counters. Observers said the amount of radioactivity was larger than the usual cosmic ray count.

They reported nothing from the second underwater test at Bikini July 25, but they had not expected anything. This was because the bomb lost a larger percentage of its radioactivity in Bikini lagoon and less was released into the air.

Only a slight increase in radioactivity—perhaps 20 per cent—was observed across the continent at Atlanta, Ga., by Emory University scientists, but they reported a decided jump at Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Robert T. Lagemann, Emory associate professor of physics, said he detected a very pronounced increase about eight days after the blast.

Dr. Lagemann added that he was unable to account for the variation unless the travel course of the radioactive chemicals was affected by wind currents or other atmospheric conditions.

The Emory scientist also made public a report from Prof. A. H. Weber, of St. Louis University, that a slight increase over normal cosmic ray count was noted in St. Louis.

Selective Stocks Rally Quietly; Celanese Gains On Splitup Plan

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Stocks rallied selectively and relatively quietly in today's market after considerable forenoon irregularity.

Some bidding and short covering appeared at the end of the fourth hour, centering on assorted steels, motors, liquors, rails and special industrials. Gains at the close generally ranged from fractions to two points with scattered "thin" issues executing much wider jumps. Dealings, sluggish during the greater part of the proceedings, picked up some activity as prices stiffened. Transfers totalled 870,000 shares compared with 730,000 Tuesday and were the best since last Wednesday.

Celanese was up 3½ at $70.50 on a splitup proposal. Hiram Walker advanced 6½ to $152, Schenley 2½ to $92.50 and Union Pacific three to $148.25.

On the upside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central, United States Rubber, Gimbel, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Curtiss-Wright "A," National Power and Light (on a 10,000-share block), Electric Power and Light, R-K-O, American Woolen preferred, du Pont, American Rolling Mill, Eastern Air Lines and International Paper.

Minus signs were posted for Public Service of New Jersey, International Harvester, Socony, Union Carbide, Commonwealth and Southern and Sperry.

Bonds were narrow.

Curb advances included Barium Steel, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, United Elastic, Textron and American Maracaibo oil. Turnover here was 230,000 shares versus 200,000 yesterday.

Demand for railroad liens picked up late today after many issues had wobbled lower earlier in the bond market.

Many of the carriers, especially in the reorganization group, closed at the best levels of the session. Enough minus signs remained, however, to give the list a spotty appearance.

Turnover picked up to $3,490,000 from only $2,740,000 Tuesday.

Closing higher were such issues as Baltimore and Ohio convertibles at 68, Boston and Maine 4½s at 66¾, Central of Georgia consolidated 5s at 76, Burlington 2¾s at 99¾, Rock Island convertibles at 34½ and Missouri Pacific general 4s at 45¾.

On the minus side were Great Western 4s at 96¾, Illinois Central 4¾s at 94¾, Louisville and Nashville 2¾s at 100½, New York Central refunding 5s at 99, Nickel Plate 3s at 98¾, and Seaboard Airline incomes at 78¾.

In the over-the-counter market United States governments held steady with the Victory Loan 2½s of December unchanged at 102 30-32 bid.

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP.—Buying which came mainly from traders who normally represent commercial interests gave the grain market a strong undertone today. Opening on overnight gains, corn and oats held above the preceding close throughout the session.

Strength in corn was attributed partly to technical factors in view of the decline into new seasonal low territory in the first two days this week. A government weekly crop report which mentioned the need for more rain in some parts of the corn belt was an added stimulating factor. Closing grain quotations:

CORN—January 1.26⅝-⅞, March 1.27¼.

OATS—August 72⅛-¼, September 70⅝-¾, November 70½-⅝, December 71⅛-¼, March 72⅝-⅞.

People don't like to talk about Pin-Worm infection. Sometimes they are too embarrassed to mention the tormenting rectal itching. And in many cases they have not known of any effective way to deal with this pest that lives inside the human body.

Today, thanks to a special, medically recognized drug (gentian violet), a highly effective treatment has been made possible. This drug is the vital ingredient in P-W, the Pin-Worm tablets developed in the laboratories of Dr. B. Jayne & Son.

The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms.

So if you suspect Pin-Worms in your child or yourself, ask your druggist for a package of JAYNE'S P-W right away, and follow the directions. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

Selective Stocks Rally Quietly; Celanese Gains On Splitup Plan

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Stocks rallied selectively and relatively quietly in today's market after considerable forenoon irregularity.

Some bidding and short covering appeared at the end of the fourth hour, centering on assorted steels, motors, liquors, rails and special industrials. Gains at the close generally ranged from fractions to two points with scattered "thin" issues executing much wider jumps. Dealings, sluggish during the greater part of the proceedings, picked up some activity as prices stiffened. Transfers totalled 870,000 shares compared with 730,000 Tuesday and were the best since last Wednesday.

Celanese was up 3½ at $70.50 on a splitup proposal. Hiram Walker advanced 6½ to $152, Schenley 3½ to $92.50 and Union Pacific three to $149.25.

On the upside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central, United States Rubber, Gimbel, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Curtiss-Wright "A," National Power and Light (on a 10,000-share block), Electric Power and Light, R-K-O, American Woolen preferred, du Pont, American Rolling Mill, Eastern Air Lines and International Paper.

Minus signs were posted for Public Service of New Jersey, International Harvester, Socony, Union Carbide, Commonwealth and Southern and Sperry.

Bonds were narrow.

Curb advances included Barium Steel, Cuban Atlantic Sugar, United Elastic, Textron and American Maracaibo and British-American oil. Turnover here was 230,000 shares versus 200,000 yesterday.

Demand for railroad liens picked up late today after many issues had wobbled lower earlier in the bond market.

Many of the carriers, especially in the reorganization group, closed at the best levels of the session. Enough minus signs remained, however, to give the list a spotty appearance.

Turnover picked up to $3,490,000 from only $2,740,000 Tuesday.

Closing higher were such issues as Baltimore and Ohio convertibles at 68, Boston and Maine 4½s at 66¾, Central of Georgia consolidated 5s at 76, Burlington 2¾s at 99¾, Rock Island convertibles at 34½ and Missouri Pacific general 4s at 45½.

On the minus side were Great Western 4s at 96¼, Illinois Central 4¼s at 94¼, Louisville and Nashville 2¾s at 100½, New York Central refunding 5s at 99, Nickel Plate 3s at 98½, and Seaboard Airline incomes at 78⅞.

In the over-the-counter market United States governments held steady with the Victory Loan 2½s of December unchanged at 102 30-32 bid.

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 7 (AP)—Buying which came mainly from traders who normally represent commercial interests gave the grain market a strong undertone today. Opening on overnight gains, corn and oats held above the preceding close throughout the session.

Strength in corn was attributed partly to technical factors in view of the decline into new seasonal low territory in the first two days this week. A government weekly crop report which mentioned the need for more rain in some parts of the corn belt was an added stimulating factor. Closing grain quotations:

CORN—January 1.34¾-⅞, March 1.37¼, OATS—August 75⅛-¼, September 70¾-⅞, November 70½-⅝, December 71⅛-¼, March 72⅝-⅞.

Advice To The Lovelorn

His Brother's Mistakes Scare Him Away From Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for several months now, and am sincerely in love with her. I have often told her how I felt about her, and she has done the same with me.

I have asked her if she would accept a diamond from me, and she has said yes, and we plan to be married as soon as she become of age.

My family has told me that we are young and don't know what we want, and that she just wants a diamond out of it. They think this because my older brother made a mistake, and now I'm doubtful about it. What can I do to find out if she is sincere in her feelings, as I am?

BEWILDERED.

Well, I should think it might be a good idea if you tried trusting her, don't you think? That's as good a way as I know to find out how she feels about you.

And why should you doubt that she's just as sincere as you are? First thing you know, if you start raising questions about her feelings, you'll find that she's beginning to doubt yours. And then before long everything will be in a fine mess. Just because your brother didn't know how to pick the right one, does that mean that you don't know either? Don't you trust your own judgment any better than that?

You don't say how young you are, but if you can afford a diamond for your girl, you're no child. So don't act like one and let your family tell you who to like and who not to like. If you haven't got any better reasons than you've given me for doubting this girl's sincerity, for heaven's sake, don't start dreaming them up.

What Kind Of Work Can A Woman Do In Her Own Home?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you know of a job that could be done at home? It is quite necessary that I find some means of adding to our income, yet I can't get a regular job because we are expecting our first child about October 1.

My husband was discharged in January, and we have since been living with my folks. Due to one thing after another, he started working only this week, but his pay, including government allotment for training, will be only $160 a month. If I could find some way to earn money, perhaps we could get a place of our own. Living as we are is hurting our marriage, and might even break it up.

Before marriage, I worked as salesclerk, waitress and an inspector in several war plants. I am a high school graduate, 23 years old and know a little about typing and bookkeeping. Crocheting is my hobby.

"HOPEFUL."

It's pretty hard for a woman to find any work to do at home that would bring in more than a few dollars, I'm afraid. Many women have worked up fairly profitable home businesses such as baking, candy-making, typing bureaus, sewing and mending, and the like, but it takes quite a long time, and usually some capital, to even get started.

Don't you think, since your child is coming so soon and will presumably put an end to any kind of outside work for awhile, you'd better try to stick thing out with your family until after the child's birth, at least? Then you might see what other plans you could make.

In the meantime, if you really think it worthwhile to try to earn even a little, why not put an advertisement in the newspapers offering to sit with children in the evenings, when their parents want to go out, or take care of them in the afternoons, to free their mothers for other things? You might have an informal little "nursery school," say, theree or four mornings or afternoons a week, which local mothers would be glad to make use of. I should think something like this would be your best bet for the time being.

Advice To The Lovelorn

His Brother's Mistakes Scare Him Away From Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for several months now, and am sincerely in love with her. I have often told her how I felt about her, and she has done the same with me.

I have asked her if she would accept a diamond from me, and she has said yes, and we plan to be married as soon as she become of age.

My family has told me that we are young and don't know what we want, and that she just wants a diamond out of it. They think this because my older brother made a mistake, and now I'm doubtful about it. What can I do to find out if she is sincere in her feelings, as I am?

BEWILDERED.

Well, I should think it might be a good idea if you tried trusting her, don't you think? That's as good a way as I know to find out how she feels about you.

And why should you doubt that she's just as sincere as you are? First thing you know, if you start raising questions about her feelings, you'll find that she's beginning to doubt yours. And then before long everything will be in a fine mess. Just because your brother didn't know how to pick the right one, does that mean that you don't know either? Don't you trust your own judgment any better than that?

You don't say how young you are, but if you can afford a diamond for your girl, you're no child. So don't act like one and let your family tell you who to like and who not to like. If you haven't got any better reasons than you've given me for doubting this girl's sincerity, for heaven's sake, don't start dreaming them up.

What Kind Of Work Can A Woman Do In Her Own Home?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you know of a job that could be done at home? It is quite necessary that I find some means of adding to our income, yet I can't get a regular job because we are expecting our first child about October 1.

My husband was discharged in January, and we have since been living with my folks. Due to one thing after another, he started working only this week, but his pay, including government allotment for training, will be only $160 a month. If I could find some way to earn money, perhaps we could get a place of our own. Living as we are is hurting our marriage, and might even break it up.

Before marriage, I worked as salesclerk, waitress and an inspector in several war plants. I am a high school graduate, 23 years old and know a little about typing and bookkeeping. Crocheting is my hobby.

"HOPEFUL."

It's pretty hard for a woman to find any work to do at home that would bring in more than a few dollars, I'm afraid. Many women have worked up fairly profitable home businesses such as baking, candy-making, typing bureaus, sewing and mending, and the like, but it takes quite a long time, and usually some capital, to even get started.

Don't you think, since your child is coming so soon and will presumably put an end to any kind of outside work for awhile, you'd better try to stick thing out with your family until after the child's birth, at least? Then you might see what other plans you could make.

In the meantime, if you really think it worthwhile to try to earn even a little, why not put an advertisement in the newspapers offering to sit with children in the evenings, when their parents want to go out, or take care of them in the afternoons, to free their mothers for other things? You might have an informal little "nursery school," say, theree or four mornings or afternoons a week, which local mothers would be glad to make use of. I should think something like this would be your best bet for the time being.

Chances For Balanced Budget Only Remote

Despite the President's publicly-expressed hopes, there seems to be only a remote chance that the fiscal year which began July 1 will find the federal budget in balance. But the taxes are pouring in at an unprecedented peacetime rate and, barring a reversal in business activity, may actually produce a Treasury surplus in the 1947-48 period regardless of governmental extravagance. If tax rates are continued at the present confiscatory level, that is. No one believes that the next Congress will extend taxes at the present level.

The discouraging note in Mr. Truman's report is the sharp increase in expenses. Whereas it appeared to the Administration in January that it would cost no more than $36,000,000,000 to run the government this year, the present estimate is $41,500,000,000 or five times the prewar rate and nearly fifteen times the 1932 rate.

The terminal leave pay to servicemen is responsible for approximately one-half of this advance, and higher salaries for government personnel account for a large part of the remainder. Expectations, therefore, that the end of the war would see expenditures constantly dropping were not grounded on solid fact. While the large appropriations were made by Congress the attempt to place the responsibility for them solely on the national legislative bodies is not completely accurate. The Administration specifically requested many of them, and if it had secured everything it asked for the total would have been much larger. One needs only recall that it was Congress which reduced the amount of subsidies by close to a billion dollars, and slashed other appropriations Mr. Truman recommended. Both the legislative and executive branches of the government, therefore, must bear equal responsibility.

Further, the financial experts were just as wrong in their appraisal of receipts. It is now President Truman's conviction that the government will take in $8,000,000,000 more than seemed possible when the budget was first submitted to Congress. Nearly two-thirds of this vast amount is produced by a jump in taxes paid by individuals, so it may safely be assumed that the national income is far greater than anyone imagined would be the case.

The only hope of relief for the taxpayers is election of a Congress that will cut taxes and let the chips fall where they may. If Congress waits until the government cannot use the money before ordering slashes in present rates, taxes will always remain at their present level.

General Mikhailovich was a casualty of the Communist contribution to court procedure—trial by fury.

Why The Delay In Our Reconversion

After having tried in vain to buy an automobile, some farm equipment and various minor home appliances, a reader asks the following question: Why is it that a country which was able in 1941-42 to convert from peacetime production to wartime production in a few short months has found it impossible to reconvert to peacetime in the whole year since the war ended?

There is, of course, no single explanation that is adequate. Part of the responsibility lies with the administration in Washington which has been blundering and incompetent. More than minor blame attaches to the labor leaders at whose behest men have either gone on strike or reduced the amount of work they will do in a given period of time. A third factor is a general restlessness which makes people want to go on vacation rather than stay on the job.

Some of the blundering in Washington has been both vicious and deliberate. There are men and women with high standing in the administration—most of them pro-communists of the advanced New Deal type—who do not want America to return to prosperity under the system of free enterprise and who have influence and power enough to make continuous trouble.

The more confusion there is and the greater the delay in producing needed commodities the better it fits in with their purpose to socialize industry and inflict regimentation upon the nation.

These people naturally were elated by the wave of strikes which inundated the country for many months. Some of them, in fact, started the whole performance, especially that group of so-called economists and statisticians which inspired Henry Wallace to give out the misleading and unfounded statement that wages could be raised 25 per cent without increasing the cost of manufactured goods.

This was more than sheer nonsense. It created a situation which interfered with the whole reconversion process. That is one reason why people cannot buy automobiles today. It is conservatively estimated that there would be one million additional new cars on the road today if it had not been for strikes.

Nothing sounds worse to some youngsters than sound talk.

Missing Real Hope And Purpose Of Republic

Any government forced to demand loyalty of its people by threat of punishment misses the real hope and purpose of a republic.

Laws are necessary to punish criminals, and to dissuade potential criminals, but when it is deemed necessary to tell a citizen what he can eat and how much, what he must pay for his shoes or a stick of chewing gum, the United States has strayed far from the spirit of the day when the Colonial fathers declared this to be a free country, and pledged their lives and fortunes to the cause.

No business has been too small, no citizen too humble, not to have felt the hand of an administration dedicated to the task of snooping into affairs which should be none of its concern. The result has been a growing tendency to circumvent rules and laws so complicated and unfair as to be universally condemned.

Cheating the government has become a common, and in the estimation of many persons, a laudable practice. Americans severed ties with England when they grew tired of shouting "Long Live the King." Nor will they long continue to bend the knee to their own government when that government adopts the role of dictator.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

SWIMMING POOL HYGIENE

THE swimming pool has been a godsend to thousands who are not blessed with bathing beaches. On the other hand, the device can be a potential source of danger unless precautions are used to guard against accident and disease.

Certain rules must be followed in order to minimize contamination. The first relate to the bathers, who must take a shower with soap and warm water before entering. A footbath is usually available thru which they must walk coming and going. To protect others, no one with a skin disease, sore or inflamed eyes, a cold, or a contagious disorder should employ the facilities. Thru such procedures, much of the stigma associated with swimming pools can be eliminated. Altho the regulations are generally posted, policing is often necessary for youngsters and adults who ignore them.

Supervisors and owners also have an obligation to keep the water purified. In the old "fill and draw" arrangement, the tank was filled with clean water, used for a certain period, and then withdrawn. To combat an overabundance of bacteria, chemicals can be added, but there is a limit to the amount that it is possible to employ. Furthermore, it is difficult to extract contaminating agents introduced during normal operations. Pools of this type are better than none, especially if the water is changed at frequent intervals. But with so many disadvantages they are seldom advised except perhaps in some one's back yard for home use.

The modern pool has a recirculation system. The water is pumped out continuously and sent through a cleansing apparatus. First it runs through a screening gadget, known as a "hair catcher," which picks up larger particles such as hair and lint. The water is then forced through a pressure filter containing graded gravel on the bottom and sand on top. The fluid enters on top and, while passing downward, the filter substance catches coloring matter, bacteria, and other fragments.

Unless the equipment is cleaned from time to time the surface layers will become clogged so that it cannot work properly. Moreover, bacteria settle to the bottom gradually and find their way into the fresh water. The answer is to reverse the flow. Obviously, the polluted solution does not return to the pool as the pipe is turned off and another exit is utilized.

It has been found that a complete turnover of water in a tank every 24 hours will afford a 63 per cent purification. If the pumps are operated faster, and the maneuver is performed five times a day, the figure increases to 99.3 per cent. This is necessary especially if the bathing load is heavy. A more rapid turnover is not economically sound.

By weekly testing of the water, the operator can determine the effect of the system. The chlorine content should always remain between 0.4 and 0.6 parts for maximum efficiency. Sometimes alum is added to form a gelatinous "floc" which enmeshes foreign objects. As it goes thru the filter the preparation is removed. Otherwise a scummy appearance would be noted.

A pool, properly maintained, offers a delightful recreational apparatus. As such, it is a worthy health measure.

REPLY

These symptoms are not characteristic of cervical rib but in your case it may be responsible for neuralgia.

Just beneath the lower ribs to the right of the midline.

UNDERACTIVE THYROID

No. It indicates that the gland is underactive. We could not live without a thyroid, altho sometimes too much is removed during an operation.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Byrnes Irked When Molotov Reveals Backstage Promise to Vote For Rotating Chairman of Conference; U. S. Secretary Hogtied On Most Treaty Provisions

By DREW PEARSON

PARIS, Aug. 7 (by wireless)—For some reason it has escaped public attention, but the one delegate who so far has stood up and really talked back to conference dictator Vyacheslav Molotov is British Undersecretary Hector McNeil, a Scotsman. Molotov was demanding that the permanent chairman of the peace conference rotate among the Big Five, while Britain had proposed France's pink-cheeked Georges Bidault as permanent chairman. In the course of this debate Molotov described the British position as "illogical."

"Don't you ever say that to me again," warned the British Undersecretary, jumping to his feet and shaking his finger at Molotov.

"That's an insult to my Foreign Secretary. My Secretary of State knows what he's doing."

Then McNeil proceeded to explain that Britain was glad to support Bidault as permanent chairman as long as there was any chance of a unanimous vote for him. But since the vote was now obviously not going to be unanimous, Britain would revert to her original position of favoring a rotating chairmanship.

Molotov looked hard at the intrepid Scotsman but made no reply. It was the first time anyone had really talked back to him.

Byrnes Gets Mad

Jimmie Byrnes, the most patient, sweet-tempered delegate at the peace conference, really hit the ceiling during a little-noticed incident the other day. What made him mad was when Molotov revealed a private deal he and Byrnes had hatched together.

Molotov was debating the same controversial question of rotating the chairmanship or letting France be the permanent chairman and he let drop the significant remark that Secretary of State Byrnes had promised him to vote for a rotating chairman.

Byrnes controlled his temper and said nothing. But his aides revealed he boiled inwardly at Molotov's indiscreet disclosure.

Unfortunately for the American position, this confirmed what the smaller nations have suspected: namely, that the United States, instead of being the real leader of the nations which devoutly favor an impartial peace actually is appeasing the bloc which favors a Soviet-dominated peace. They hope that Byrnes won't make any more backstage deals with Molotov.

The real fact is that the chairmanship wasn't important—except as a symbol of another milestone in the many victories won by Russia. Byrnes could well afford to compromise on it. But what many people don't realize is that when all these preliminaries are finished and the conference gets down to real debate, Byrnes is hamstrung and hogtied on most of the treaty provisions.

He has agreed in advance not to differ with most of the original treaty text. On points where the United States has made definite reservations — such as the Trieste boundary—Byrnes can differ, but on all other non-reserved points the Big Four must vote as a unit. That is why the small nations will have such a hard time making any real changes in the treaty. The cards were stacked against them well in advance.

Pressure Groups Busy

Secretary of State Byrnes got various trans-Atlantic phone calls in Paris from Senators on U. S. groups urging better treatment for Greeks, for Italians, for Ethiopia, and for the Austrian Tyrol. All the calls came from American citizens.

Finally Byrnes remarked: "So far I have received no petition from any group of citizens favoring a fair peace for America. If I receive anything from a league for a just peace for the United States I shall give it No. 1 priority."

September U. N. Assembly To Be Postponed

New York hotel men can write it down as certain that the 5,000 rooms reserved for the United Nations General Assembly will be canceled. There's nothing official on it yet but the Paris Peace Conference can't possibly finish in time for the United Nations Assembly to be held on schedule in September.

The U. N. is reluctant to postpone the assembly because of the expense involved. Reservation of 5,000 rooms meant canceling several conventions and the U. N. probably will have to reimburse the hotels. Despite this, postponement is certain.

U. S. Propaganda Neglected

Five hours in France convinces any observer how badly the U. S. A. has neglected its propaganda. The French people know almost nothing about United States victories during the war in the Pacific, our tremendous donations of food or our unselfish, historic giving of independence to the Philippines. They think Russia defeated Japan and because the Soviet landed a few ballyhooed cargoes of wheat in France, they think their bread comes largely from Russia.

A skillful educational campaign to cement old friendships with France, Belgium and Czechoslovakia should be relatively easy, but here's what happened during the closing days of Congress. It illustrates the tough job Secretary Byrnes faces both abroad and at home.

The House of Representatives had passed the Benton bill permitting the State Department to engage in a broad educational campaign exchanging students and professors and other badly needed propaganda to win friends and to counteract Soviet myths in other lands. Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson then persuaded Texas' minor statesman, Tom Connally, to push the Benton bill through the Senate.

But at the last minute, when Connally moved for passage of this highly important bill, he yielded to a colleague who wanted to speak on another subject.

During the interim, Senators told the bushy-haired gentleman from Marlin, Texas, that if he insisted on passing the Benton bill they would call up other bills, thus requiring Congress to spend three more days in the heat of Washington.

So Big Tom traded peace for a vacation. The senate ditched one of the most important moves it could make to improve our foreign relations and went home to cooler weather.

Decoding the Diplomatic Pouch

Albanian and Bulgarian armies, both with strong Russian backing, are now moving toward the Greek border to forestall any Greek demands for slices of Albanian or Bulgarian territory. The situation is so worrying that Jimmy Byrnes may ask Molotov to have his satellites pipe down. Mexican Foreign Minister is en route to Paris to protest to both Byrnes and the British against Mexico's exclusion from the peace conference. . . . Despite Jimmie Byrnes's fearless crusading for open diplomacy, his chief career diplomat, adviser Jimmie Dunn, has just circulated instructions to State Department employees to tighten secrecy. Open diplomacy, he implies, is impossible.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The more we realize that we cannot separate ourselves from the great stream of life, that we cannot live to ourselves alone, nor ignore the forces that weld together all that the universe represents, the more we become one with the universe, as every one of us should.

It is the concern of us all that there are unhealthy conditions in the world, and that each one of us is accountable in some measure, and everything that we can do to alleviate such conditions becomes both our duty and privilege. The world in which we live is indeed One World—our world, and everyone else's world, and we should all pull together to make it the "best of all possible worlds." A world in which justice should be distributed without fear or favor.

We are one with not only those of our kind, but one with those creatures that roam the world of Nature and also one with the world of inanimate things that have only beauty to give—beauty without a voice.

It was because John Muir, the naturalist, was one with the universe that he could go into the mountains, roam the glaciers, and live happily alone for months at a time, without getting lonely. He had friends all about him. Every stir of the foot led him to new interests that gave him ecstatic joy. It was during one of those brief moments that he undoubtedly gained the inspiration to write that beautiful tribute to the water ouzel.

Walking to my Lodge for the night, I viewed a scene that would have been the masterpiece of any artist able to correctly reproduce in color what I saw. The sun had just crept beyond the horizon. A delicate orange-gold hue spread about the hiding blue of the sky. Great streams of greyish shadows spread over the wooded hills beyond. Just below a vast stretch of emerald water swept the lake. Nearer to me another deep ribbon of color, and then, closer still, a shining surface of glass-like water resembling spread silver. It was a thrilling sight. It belonged to me. I owned it, for it convinced me that I was one with the universe, as we all are.

Gaining this knowledge, we grow less selfish, more humanitarian, more respectful for the rights of others, and grow nearer to the source of all creation, and to somehow contact the Infinite Mind!

"IT Says Here"

By BOB HOPE

Members of the Pacific Coast Association of Magicians held their annual convention recently with an all-star magic show as the highlight of the event. You've got to hand it to them. Only a magician could keep vaudeville alive.

Those tricks were really baffling. One magician stopped the show by pulling colored scarfs out of his sleeve in what seemed to be a never-ending stream. He must have pulled the wrong thing though. . . . Suddenly his scarfs turned to shorts! They say the hand is quicker than the eye but the girl next to me slapped me anyway.

The famous Indian rope trick was by far the most fascinating. The magician climbed it and then disappeared in a puff of smoke. I went backstage to buy the rope but the magician didn't think it ethical. I guess I'll just have to leave my hotel the regular way.

My brother was a great magician but he was forced to retire . . . it seems they don't appreciate sleight of hand in a department store.

The show was a big success and the folks loved it. The magicians are gone now but we in Hollywood can't forget them. How could we? . . . The town is full of white rabbits!

AFL Tells American People Truth About Rise In The Cost Of Living

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Truth is a powerful weapon against propaganda and the American people who have been told that all price rises must be resisisted by the consumer and that the producers are solely responsible for such rises will be glad to learn that at least one of the national labor organizations does not share such a distorted view of the national economy.

The American Federation of Labor in its monthly survey just issued, says:

"Today all Americans are being penalized because a small portion of American workers used the strike for political purposes last winter. At that time AFL unions were negotiating substantial wage increases without strike and without breaking price ceilings, winning lasting gains for workers. But unaffiliated unions used the strike to force the government dictated wage-price formula of February 14 which broke price ceilings.

OPA Started Prices Upward

"From then to June 30, OPA granted 504 industry-wide price increases and individual increases to some 11,500 companies. Wholesale prices rose four per cent from February through June. These price increases of course forced retail prices upward at a slightly later date, so that cost of living had already risen three per cent when OPA expired on June 30, and the rise was gaining speed. . . .

"Practically the entire living cost rise has occurred since the steel workers forced the price ceiling break in February, and as a direct result of that break. As we pointed out then, the February 14 order brought a flood of demands for price increases. The resulting pressure on Congress has all but ended effective price control.

Steel Strike Broke Ceiling

"The steel workers were offered a 15-cent wage increase without strike and without breaking the price ceiling; their insistence on striking and bringing the government into collective bargaining won them only three ond one-half cents more; they have already lost six cents from living cost rises resulting from their action and stand to lose a great deal more as prices rise further. Since their government formula forced OPA to grant these rises, OPA cannot stop them. Had they been willing to stick to genuine collective bargaining under price ceilings, they would have had their 15 cents today, and all other Americans would have been spared immenses losses through the rapid living cost rise. Intelligent American workers will remember these facts when Communists try to mislead them into political strikes."

CIO Influenced By Communists

The Russian influence in the American labor union movement is no longer inconsequential. Persons familiar with the labor movement know the extent to which CIO unions have been influenced from within by Communists. The American Federation of Labor points to its own record in winning wage increases without strikes and then says in the same monthly survey:

"This achievement is important at a time when Communists have just published their new 'line' dictated from Moscow committing American Communist Party followers to 'mobilizing the people for struggle'. The American Federation of Labor has always insisted on the workers' fundamental right to strike and fought to preserve it, but we condemn its misuse as a political weapon. The strike is to be used only as a last resort when genuine collective bargaining breaks down."

Tells Truth About Rise

Here is the organ of the largest labor organization in the United States telling the American people the truth about the rise in the cost of living and also telling of the Communist attempts to sabotage the American economic system. How many loyal Americans are being duped by the Communists who get into their unions and present the philosophy of breakind down production and generating economic chaos? Certainly the AFL isn't mincing any words in calling attention to the dangers which face the rank and file of workers who accept a union solicitation without finding out whether the union is connected in any way with Communists or Communistic philosophy.

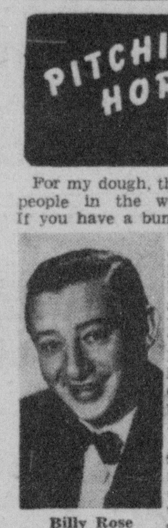
PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose



Billy Rose

For my dough, the most important people in the world are doctors. If you have a bum ticker, if a sick tooth is beating drums inside your head, if your kid breaks out in spots, whom do you holler for? Truman? Henry Kaiser? Admiral Nimitz? In a pig's ear! You send for the man with the little black satchel.

I wouldn't care if they took ninety-nine percent of the inventors, politicians and generals and chopped them up for firewood. You can't sell me that this is a better world because it's got an airplane. I don't give a hoot whether I can get to Los Angeles in seven hours, seven days or seven weeks. To me that silver bird with the cute stewardess is the same gadget that dropped a cup of plutonium on a city and bloop!—no city. If I were putting up a statue to an inventor, my hero would be the obscure Dutchman who invented the microscope.

Compared with physicians, politics don't rate very high with me. After being in charge for 5000 years they've still got us up the well-known creek. I suppose they mean well, but they always wind up making the same speech, "As of yesterday, my country is at war with your country."

I stood in the streets and hollered with the rest of the peasants when Eisenhower rode up Fifth Avenue last summer. I think Ike is a great guy, but let's face it—does he rate as many cheers as Fleming, the man who found penicillin? Not in my book.

My respect for doctors is not something I came by an hour ago because I needed a midweek piece. I've been tipping my hat to these gentlemen ever since I had a hat. There wasn't much on the obituary page when an old friend of mine, Dr. Emanuel Libman, died a few months ago. He was a slender little party with pink cheeks and a library of classical records he never had time to listen to. During his years as head of the great Mt. Sinai Hospital he charted a good part of what the top specialists know about your heart. A lot of people are going to see thousands of extra sunrises because of Manny Libman. Do you know anyone in Congress who has given the world one-tenth as much?

I know a powerful good medicine man named Jules Lempert, who has devised a startling method of building a window of living tissue into the structure of a dead ear. For years they called him quack, and insisted the operation was impossible. Today he lectures at Harvard Medical, and they write articles about him in Readers Digest. At the end of a working day, this talented surgeon can say, "I have given a man back his hearing." Do you think Benjiman Fairless of United States Steel is nearly so important a citizen?

In a quiet way, doctor chaps are brothers to the priceless madmen who clean out machine gun nests or claw their way up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi. When I was a kid I had scarlet fever, and they tacked up a red sign on my house and nobody could come near me. But a little old geezer with a black bag walked right in. I can still see the tiny red veins around his nose, and catch the smell of iodoform and tobacco from his rumpled suit. I remember asking my mother, "Don't doctors get sick?" Mom assured me they didn't—but she was fibbing. The list of doctors who were struck down by the bugs they were chasing would stretch from here to Valhalla.

In the last couple of centuries these test tube babies have added thirty years to the average life expectancy. I don't know about you, but I wouldn't swap one Spring out of those thirty for a chunk of gold the size of Radio City.

Of course, the great stand-outs of medical science don't need me to beat their drum. The Warner Brothers took care of that some years ago in their "doctor" cycle. You couldn't go into a theatre without seeing Paul Muni inoculating rabbits. But the doctor in your neighborhood, with the stethescope and 1937 Chevy, could use a little applause. In a society that rates a guy by how big a check he can write, he knocks his brains out for practically no dough. Remember that when you run into real trouble—something bites you in the belly, a sledgehammer starts knocking at the base of your skull, your heart is pumping like an old hot water bag—it's old Doc Sawbones who comes around and stops the hurt.

To me, that's as important as anybody can get.

Chances For Balanced Budget Only Remote

Despite the President's publicly-expressed hopes, there seems to be only a remote chance that the fiscal year which began July 1 will find the federal budget in balance. But the taxes are pouring in at an unprecedented peacetime rate and, barring a reversal in business activity, may actually produce a Treasury surplus in the 1947-48 period regardless of governmental extravagance. If tax rates are continued at the present confiscatory level, that is. No one believes that the next Congress will extend taxes at the present level.

The discouraging note in Mr. Truman's report is the sharp increase in expenses. Whereas it appeared to the Administration in January that it would cost no more than $36,000,000,000 to run the government this year, the present estimate is $41,500,000,000 or five times the prewar rate and nearly fifteen times the 1932 rate.

The terminal leave pay to servicemen is responsible for approximately one-half of this advance, and higher salaries for government personnel account for a large part of the remainder. Expectations, therefore, that the end of the war would see expenditures constantly dropping were not grounded on solid fact. While the large appropriations were made by Congress the attempt to place the responsibility for them solely on the national legislative bodies is not completely accurate. The Administration specifically requested many of them, and if it had secured everything it asked for the total would have been much larger. One needs only recall that it was Congress which reduced the amount of subsidies by close to a billion dollars, and slashed other appropriations Mr. Truman recommended. Both the legislative and executive branches of the government, therefore, must bear equal responsibility.

Further, the financial experts were just as wrong in their appraisal of receipts. It is now President Truman's conviction that the government will take in $8,000,000,000 more than seemed possible when the budget was first submitted to Congress. Nearly two-thirds of this vast amount is produced by a jump in taxes paid by individuals, so it may safely be assumed that the national income is far greater than anyone imagined would be the case.

The only hope of relief for the taxpayers is election of a Congress that will cut taxes and let the chips fall where they may. If Congress waits until the government cannot use the money before ordering slashes in present rates, taxes will always remain at their present level.

General Mikhailovich was a casualty of the Communist contribution to court procedure—trial by fury.

Why The Delay In Our Reconversion

After having tried in vain to buy an automobile, some farm equipment and various minor home appliances, a reader asks the following question: Why is it that a country which was able in 1941-42 to convert from peacetime production to wartime production in a few short months has found it impossible to reconvert to peacetime in the whole year since the war ended?

There is, of course, no single explanation that is adequate. Part of the responsibility lies with the administration in Washington which has been blundering and incompetent. More than minor blame attaches to the labor leaders at whose behest men have either gone on strike or reduced the amount of work they will do in a given period of time. A third factor is a general restlessness which makes people want to go on vacation rather than stay on the job.

Some of the blundering in Washington has been both vicious and deliberate. There are men and women with high standing in the administration—most of them pro-communists of the advanced New Deal type—who do not want America to return to prosperity under the system of free enterprise and who have influence and power enough to make continuous trouble.

The more confusion there is and the greater the delay in producing needed commodities the better it fits in with their purpose to socialize industry and inflict regimentation upon the nation.

These people naturally were elated by the wave of strikes which inundated the country for many months. Some of them, in fact, started the whole performance, especially that group of so-called economists and statisticians which inspired Henry Wallace to give out the misleading and unfounded statement that wages could be raised 25 per cent without increasing the cost of manufactured goods.

This was more than sheer nonsense. It created a situation which interfered with the whole reconversion process. That is one reason why people cannot buy automobiles today. It is conservatively estimated that there would be one million additional new cars on the road today if it had not been for strikes.

Nothing sounds worse to some youngsters than sound talk.

Missing Real Hope And Purpose Of Republic

Any government forced to demand loyalty of its people by threat of punishment misses the real hope and purpose of a republic.

Laws are necessary to punish criminals, and to dissuade potential criminals, but when it is deemed necessary to tell a citizen what he can eat and how much, what he must pay for his shoes or a stick of chewing gum, the United States has strayed far from the spirit of the day when the Colonial fathers declared this to be a free country, and pledged their lives and fortunes to the cause.

No business has been too small, no citizen too humble, not to have felt the hand of an administration dedicated to the task of snooping into affairs which should be none of its concern. The result has been a growing tendency to circumvent rules and laws so complicated and unfair as to be universally condemned.

Cheating the government has become a common, and in the estimation of many persons, a laudable practice. Americans severed ties with England when they grew tired of shouting "Long Live the King." Nor will they long continue to bend the knee to their own government when that government adopts the role of dictator.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

SWIMMING POOL HYGIENE

THE swimming pool has been a godsend to thousands who are not blessed with bathing beaches. On the other hand, the device can be a potential source of danger unless precautions are used to guard against accident and disease.

Certain rules must be followed in order to minimize contamination. The first relate to the bathers, who must take a shower with soap and warm water before entering. A footbath is usually available thru which they must walk coming and going. To protect others, no one with a skin disease, sore or inflamed eyes, a cold, or a contagious disorder should employ the facilities. Thru such procedures, much of the stigma associated with swimming pools can be eliminated. Altho the regulations are generally posted, policing is often necessary for youngsters and adults who ignore them.

Supervisors and owners also have an obligation to keep the water purified. In the old "fill and draw" arrangement, the tank was filled with clean water, used for a certain period, and then withdrawn. To combat an overabundance of bacteria, chemicals can be added, but there is a limit to the amount that it is possible to employ. Furthermore, it is difficult to extract contaminating agents introduced during normal operations. Pools of this type are better than none, especially if the water is changed at frequent intervals. But with so many disadvantages they are seldom advised except perhaps in some one's back yard for home use.

The modern pool has a recirculation system. The water is pumped out continuously and sent through a cleansing apparatus. First it runs through a screening gadget, known as a "hair catcher," which picks up larger particles such as hair and lint. The water is then forced through a pressure filter containing graded gravel on the bottom and sand on top. The fluid enters on top and, while passing downward, the filter substance catches coloring matter, bacteria, and other fragments.

Unless the equipment is cleaned from time to time the surface layers will become clogged so that it cannot work properly. Moreover, bacteria settle to the bottom gradually and find their way into the fresh water. The answer is to reverse the flow. Obviously, the polluted solution does not return to the pool as the pipe is turned off and another exit is utilized.

It has been found that a complete turnover of water in a tank every 24 hours will afford a 63 per cent purification. If the pumps are operated faster, and the maneuver is performed five times a day, the figure increases to 99.3 per cent. This is necessary especially if the bathing load is heavy. A more rapid turnover is not economically sound.

By weekly testing of the water, the operator can determine the effect of the system. The chlorine content should always remain between 0.4 and 0.6 parts for maximum efficiency. Sometimes alum is added to form a gelatinous "floc" which enmeshes foreign objects. As it goes thru the filter the preparation is removed. Otherwise a scummy appearance would be noted.

A pool, properly maintained, offers a delightful recreational apparatus. As such, it is a worthy health measure.

Byrnes Irked When Molotov Reveals Backstage Promise to Vote For Rotating Chairman of Conference; U. S. Secretary Hogtied On Most Treaty Provisions

By DREW PEARSON

PARIS, Aug. 7 (by wireless)—For some reason it has escaped public attention, but the one delegate who so far has stood up and really talked back to conference dictator Vyacheslav Molotov is British Undersecretary Hector McNeil, a Scotsman. Molotov was demanding that the permanent chairman of the peace conference rotate among the Big Five, while Britain had proposed France's pink-cheeked Georges Bidault as permanent chairman. In the course of this debate Molotov described the British position as "illogical."

"Don't you ever say that to me again," warned the British Undersecretary, jumping to his feet and shaking his finger at Molotov.

"That's an insult to my Foreign Secretary. My Secretary of State knows what he's doing."

Then McNeil proceeded to explain that Britain was glad to support Bidault as permanent chairman as long as there was any chance of a unanimous vote for him. But since the vote was now obviously not going to be unanimous, Britain would revert to her original position of favoring a rotating chairmanship.

Molotov looked hard at the intrepid Scotsman but made no reply. It was the first time anyone had really talked back to him.

Byrnes Gets Mad

Jimmie Byrnes, the most patient, sweet-tempered delegate at the peace conference, really hit the ceiling during a little-noticed incident the other day. What made him mad was when Molotov revealed a private deal he and Byrnes had hatched together.

Molotov was debating the same controversial question of rotating the chairmanship or letting France be the permanent chairman and he let drop the significant remark that Secretary of State Byrnes had promised him to vote for a rotating chairman.

Byrnes controlled his temper and said nothing. But his aides revealed he boiled inwardly at Molotov's indiscreet disclosure.

Unfortunately for the American position, this confirmed what the smaller nations have suspected: namely, that the United States, instead of being the real leader of the nations which devoutly favor an impartial peace actually is appeasing the bloc which favors a Soviet-dominated peace. They hope that Byrnes won't make any more backstage deals with Molotov.

The real fact is that the chairmanship wasn't important—except as a symbol of another milestone in the many victories won by Russia. Byrnes could well afford to compromise on it. But what many people don't realize is that when all these preliminaries are finished and the conference gets down to real debate, Byrnes is hamstrung and hogtied on most of the treaty provisions.

He has agreed in advance not to differ with most of the original treaty text. On points where the United States has made definite reservations — such as the Trieste boundary—Byrnes can differ, but on all other non-reserved points the Big Four must vote as a unit. That is why the small nations will have such a hard time making any real changes in the treaty. The cards were stacked against them well in advance.

Pressure Groups Busy

Secretary of State Byrnes got various trans-Atlantic phone calls in Paris from Senators on U. S. groups urging better treatment for Greeks, for Italians, for Ethiopia, and for the Austrian Tyrol. All the calls came from American citizens.

Finally Byrnes remarked: "So far I have received no petition from any group of citizens favoring a fair peace for America. If I receive anything from a league for a just peace for the United States I shall give it No. 1 priority."

September U. N. Assembly To Be Postponed

New York hotel men can write it down as certain that the 5,000 rooms reserved for the United Nations General Assembly will be canceled. There's nothing official on it yet but the Paris Peace Conference can't possibly finish in time for the United Nations Assembly to be held on schedule in September.

The U. N. is reluctant to postpone the assembly because of the expense involved. Reservation of 5,000 rooms meant canceling several conventions and the U. N. probably will have to reimburse the hotels. Despite this, postponement is certain.

U. S. Propaganda Neglected

Five hours in France convinces any observer how badly the U. S. A. has neglected its propaganda. The French people know almost nothing about United States victories during the war in the Pacific, our tremendous donations of food or our unselfish, historic giving of independence to the Philippines. They think Russia defeated Japan and because the Soviet landed a few ballyhooed cargoes of wheat in France, they think their bread comes largely from Russia.

A skillful educational campaign to cement old friendships with France, Belgium and Czechoslovakia should be relatively easy, but here's what happened during the closing days of Congress. It illustrates the tough job Secretary Byrnes faces both abroad and at home.

The House of Representatives had passed the Benton bill permitting the State Department to engage in a broad educational campaign exchanging students and professors and other badly needed propaganda to win friends and to counteract Soviet myths in other lands. Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson then persuaded Texas' minor statesman, Tom Connally, to push the Benton bill through the Senate.

But at the last minute, when Connally moved for passage of this highly important bill, he yielded to a colleague who wanted to speak on another subject.

During the interim, Senators told the bushy-haired gentleman from Marlin, Texas, that if he insisted on passing the Benton bill they would call up other bills, thus requiring Congress to spend three more days in the heat of Washington.

So Big Tom traded peace for a vacation. The senate ditched one of the most important moves it could make to improve our foreign relations and went home to cooler weather.

Decoding the Diplomatic Pouch

Albanian and Bulgarian armies, both with strong Russian backing, are now moving toward the Greek border to forestall any Greek demands for slices of Albanian or Bulgarian territory. The situation is so worrying that Jimmy Byrnes may ask Molotov to have his satellites pipe down. Mexican Foreign Minister is en route to Paris to protest to both Byrnes and the British against Mexico's exclusion from the peace conference. . . . Despite Jimmie Byrnes's fearless crusading for open diplomacy, his chief career diplomat, adviser Jimmie Dunn, has just circulated instructions to State Department employees to tighten secrecy. Open diplomacy, he implies, is impossible.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The more we realize that we cannot separate ourselves from the great stream of life, that we cannot live to ourselves alone, nor ignore the forces that weld together all that the universe represents, the more we become one with the universe, as every one of us should.

It is the concern of us all that there are unhealthy conditions in the world, and that each one of us is accountable in some measure, and everything that we can do to alleviate such conditions becomes both our duty and privilege. The world in which we live is indeed One World—our world, and everyone else's world, and we should all pull together to make it the "best of all possible worlds." A world in which justice should be distributed without fear or favor.

We are one with not only those of our kind, but one with those creatures that roam the world of Nature and also one with the world of inanimate things that have only beauty to give—beauty without a voice.

It was because John Muir, the naturalist, was one with the universe that he could go into the mountains, roam the glaciers, and live happily alone for months at a time, without getting lonely. He had friends all about him. Every stir of the foot led him to new interests that gave him ecstatic joy. It was during one of those brief moments that he undoubtedly gained the inspiration to write that beautiful tribute to the water ouzel.

Walking to my Lodge for the night, I viewed a scene that would have been the masterpiece of any artist able to correctly reproduce in color what I saw. The sun had just crept beyond the horizon. A delicate orange-gold hue spread about the hiding blue of the sky. Great streams of greyish shadows spread over the wooded hills beyond. Just below a vast stretch of emerald water swept the lake. Nearer to me another deep ribbon of color, and then, closer still, a shining surface of glass-like water resembling spread silver. It was a thrilling sight. It belonged to me. I owned it, for it convinced me that I was one with the universe, as we all are.

Gaining this knowledge, we grow less selfish, more humanitarian, more respectful for the rights of others, and grow nearer to the source of all creation, and to somehow contact the Infinite Mind!

AFL Tells American People Truth About Rise In The Cost Of Living

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Truth is a powerful weapon against propaganda and the American people who have been told that all price rises must be resisisted by the consumer and that the producers are solely responsible for such rises will be glad to learn that at least one of the national labor organizations does not share such a distorted view of the national economy.

The American Federation of Labor in its monthly survey just issued, says:

"Today all Americans are being penalized because a small portion of American workers used the strike for political purposes last winter. At that time AFL unions were negotiating substantial wage increases without strike and without breaking price ceilings, winning lasting gains for workers. But unaffiliated unions used the strike to force the government dictated wage-price formula of February 14 which broke price ceilings.

OPA Started Prices Upward

"From then to June 30, OPA granted 504 industry-wide price increases and individual increases to some 11,500 companies. Wholesale prices rose four per cent from February through June. These price increases of course forced retail prices upward at a slightly later date, so that cost of living had already risen three per cent when OPA expired on June 30, and the rise was gaining speed. . . .

"Practically the entire living cost rise has occurred since the steel workers forced the price ceiling break in February, and as a direct result of that break. As we pointed out then, the February 14 order brought a flood of demands for price increases. The resulting pressure on Congress has all but ended effective price control.

Steel Strike Broke Ceiling

"The steel workers were offered a 15-cent wage increase without strike and without breaking the price ceiling; their insistence on striking and bringing the government into collective bargaining won them only three ond one-half cents more; they have already lost six cents from living cost rises resulting from their action and stand to lose a great deal more as prices rise further. Since their government formula forced OPA to grant these rises, OPA cannot stop them. Had they been willing to stick to genuine collective bargaining under price ceilings, they would have had their 15 cents today, and all other Americans would have been spared immenses losses through the rapid living cost rise. Intelligent American workers will remember these facts when Communists try to mislead them into political strikes."

CIO Influenced By Communists

The Russian influence in the American labor union movement is no longer inconsequential. Persons familiar with the labor movement know the extent to which CIO unions have been influenced from within by Communists. The American Federation of Labor points to its own record in winning wage increases without strikes and then says in the same monthly survey:

"This achievement is important at a time when Communists have just published their new 'line' dictated from Moscow committing American Communist Party followers to 'mobilizing the people for struggle'. The American Federation of Labor has always insisted on the workers' fundamental right to strike and fought to preserve it, but we condemn its misuse as a political weapon. The strike is to be used only as a last resort when genuine collective bargaining breaks down."

Tells Truth About Rise

Here is the organ of the largest labor organization in the United States telling the American people the truth about the rise in the cost of living and also telling of the Communist attempts to sabotage the American economic system. How many loyal Americans are being duped by the Communists who get into their unions and present the philosophy of breakind down production and generating economic chaos? Certainly the AFL isn't mincing any words in calling attention to the dangers which face the rank and file of workers who accept a union solicitation without finding out whether the union is connected in any way with Communists or Communistic philosophy.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Billy Rose

For my dough, the most important people in the world are doctors. If you have a bum ticker, if a sick tooth is beating drums inside your head, if your kid breaks out in spots, whom do you holler for? Truman? Henry Kaiser? Admiral Nimitz? In a pig's ear! You send for the man with the little black satchel.

I wouldn't care if they took ninety-nine percent of the inventors, politicians and generals and chopped them up for firewood. You can't sell me that this is a better world because it's got an airplane. I don't give a hoot whether I can get to Los Angeles in seven hours, seven days or seven weeks. To me that silver bird with the cute stewardess is the same gadget that dropped a cup of plutonium on a city and bloop!—no city. If I were putting up a statue to an inventor, my hero would be the obscure Dutchman who invented the microscope.

Compared with physicians, politics don't rate very high with me. After being in charge for 5000 years they've still got us up the well-known creek. I suppose they mean well, but they always wind up making the same speech, "As of yesterday, my country is at war with your country."

I stood in the streets and hollered with the rest of the peasants when Eisenhower rode up Fifth Avenue last summer. I think Ike is a great guy, but let's face it—does he rate as many cheers as Fleming, the man who found penicillin? Not in my book.

My respect for doctors is not something I came by an hour ago because I needed a midweek piece. I've been tipping my hat to these gentlemen ever since I had a hat. There wasn't much on the obituary page when an old friend of mine, Dr. Emanuel Libman, died a few months ago. He was a slender little party with pink cheeks and a library of classical records he never had time to listen to. During his years as head of the great Mt. Sinai Hospital he charted a good part of what the top specialists know about your heart. A lot of people are going to see thousands of extra sunrises because of Manny Libman. Do you know anyone in Congress who has given the world one-tenth as much?

I know a powerful good medicine man named Jules Lempert, who has devised a startling method of building a window of living tissue into the structure of a dead ear. For years they called him quack, and insisted the operation was impossible. Today he lectures at Harvard Medical, and they write articles about him in Readers Digest. At the end of a working day, this talented surgeon can say, "I have given a man back his hearing." Do you think Benjiman Fairless of United States Steel is nearly so important a citizen?

In a quiet way, doctor chaps are brothers to the priceless madmen who clean out machine gun nests or claw their way up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi. When I was a kid I had scarlet fever, and they tacked up a red sign on my house and nobody could come near me. But a little old geezer with a black bag walked right in. I can still see the tiny red veins around his nose, and catch the smell of iodoform and tobacco from his rumpled suit. I remember asking my mother, "Don't doctors get sick?" Mom assured me they didn't—but she was fibbing. The list of doctors who were struck down by the bugs they were chasing would stretch from here to Valhalla.

In the last couple of centuries these test tube babies have added thirty years to the average life expectancy. I don't know about you, but I wouldn't swap one Spring out of those thirty for a chunk of gold the size of Radio City.

Of course, the great stand-outs of medical science don't need me to beat their drum. The Warner Brothers took care of that some years ago in their "doctor" cycle. You couldn't go into a theatre without seeing Paul Muni inoculating rabbits. But the doctor in your neighborhood, with the stethescope and 1937 Chevy, could use a little applause. In a society that rates a guy by how big a check he can write, he knocks his brains out for practically no dough. Remember that when you run into real trouble—something bites you in the belly, a sledgehammer starts knocking at the base of your skull, your heart is pumping like an old hot water bag—it's old Doc Sawbones who comes around and stops the hurt.

To me, that's as important as anybody can get.

Britain May Halt Jewish Immigration To Palestine

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Britain may halt all Jewish immigration to Palestine soon unless the United States agrees to aid in the plan to establish four federal provinces in the country, government informants said today.

A colonial office spokesman said that "we're near the end of the 75,000 quota" for Jewish immigration set by the 1939 white paper and that if Britain allowed more to enter after the quota was reached "the Arabs probably will rise against us."

Possible stoppage of immigration may be discussed tomorrow at a special cabinet meeting on Palestine. It was predicted that Prime Minister Attlee might propose referring the Palestine problem to the United Nations if the United States turned down the joint American-British committee plan to divide the country into four provinces.

In Cairo, meanwhile, the influential weekly magazine Rosa El Yousef said the Arab Executive Committee of Palestine opposed any negotiation with Britain unless the exiled Mufti of Jeruselem, Haj Amin El Husseini, led "the Arab delegates to London."

Jones Is Promoted

R. C. Jones has been appointed general manager of the rayon division of Celanese Corporation of America to fill the post vacated by John E. Bassill, who is retiring from the company on September 1, it is announced (Wednesday). Jones, a former vice president of Tubize Rayon Corporation, was associated with that company for more than 25 years.

The Navy has reported it has discharged more than 2,800,000 men and women since May, 1944.

Sailors Plead Guilty, Are Returned To Duty

HONOLULU, Aug. 7 (AP) — Two sailors who pleaded guilty to scandalous conduct in the disabling of the Japanese Cruiser Sakawa en route from Japan to the Bikini atomic bomb tests have been restored to duty as apprentice seamen for a six-month probation period, the Navy said today.

Capt. Sanford B. D. Wood, 14th Naval District Legal Officer, said the two, William McKinley Lambright, Jr., East Palestine, Ohio and Lloyd E. Faulkner, Baltimore, both seamen second class, had been sentenced to 18 months imprisonment by Navy court martial. Vice Adm. John L. Hall commuted their sentences.

Wood reported that Fireman 2-C Larry W. Lajoie, Chicago, and Fireman 1-C Stanley J. Berrent, Baltimore, accused by the Navy as ringleaders, had pleaded guilty but sentence had yet to be passed.

They were charged with sabotaging the ship at Kwajalein to avoid having to serve on it. It was sunk in the first bomb test July 1.

Capt. F. R. Torrington Weds Miss Maryann Jacob

Father Bogan Officiates At Ceremony In St. Patrick's Catholic Church

Two prominent Maryland families were united yesterday when Miss Maryann Jacob, daughter of Mrs. William C. Jacob, 515 Washington street, and the late Mr. Jacob, became the bride of Captain Francis Rawn Torrington, son of Mrs. William J. Torrington, the Dingle, and the late Mr. Torrington.

The wedding ceremony was performed as a nuptial mass in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with Rev. Charles W. Bogan officiating. Bouquets of white gladoli and candelabra of tall tapers decorated the church. Rev. Joseph Geib, S.J., Georgetown University, Washington, was in the sanctuary. Miss Meredith McCrea, Washington, was vocalist and Sister M. Aquinette accompanied her at the organ, playing a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

The bridal party included Miss Helen Jacob as her sister's maid of honor; Miss Mary Lou Egan, Pittsburgh, Miss Joan Weber, Long Island, N. Y., bridesmaids; William Torrington served as his brother's best man and Ensign John Jacob, John Mackey, R. Donald Shaffer and William Somerville were the ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, was attired in the traditional white satin, trimmed in the same rose point lace worn by her mother at her wedding, and carried a Limerick lace handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Hugh A. McMullen.

Her attendants all wore pearl gray and dusty rose organza gowns. Mrs. Jacob chose a wedgewood blue gown for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Torrington wore a white and green print dress.

The bride is a graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent, Washington, and served two years in the WAVES as a pharmacist mate second class.

The bridegroom, a grandson of the late James A. McHenry, is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., and a veteran of two years duty in the ETO. At present he is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Mrs. Jacob entertained in honor of her daughter and her bridal party, with a wedding reception at the Cumberland Country Club following the ceremony. The bridal party received the guests before a bower of palms, ferns and standards of assorted white flowers. Garlands of smilax and candelabra of tall tapers decorated the brides table, which was centered with a low arrangement of white flowers. A yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations of the tiered wedding cake, adorned with the lacy wedding bell used at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. McMullen, 57 years ago.

After an eastern motor trip, Capt. and Mrs. Torrington will reside in Fayetteville, N. C.

Capt. F. R. Torrington Weds Miss Maryann Jacob

Father Bogan Officiates At Ceremony In St. Patrick's Catholic Church

Two prominent Maryland families were united yesterday when Miss Maryann Jacob, daughter of Mrs. William C. Jacob, 515 Washington street, and the late Mr. Jacob, became the bride of Captain Francis Rawn Torrington, son of Mrs. William J. Torrington, the Dingle, and the late Mr. Torrington.

The wedding ceremony was performed as a nuptial mass in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with Rev. Charles W. Bogan officiating. Bouquets of white gladoli and candelabra of tall tapers decorated the church. Rev. Joseph Geib, S.J., Georgetown University, Washington, was in the sanctuary. Miss Meredith McCrea, Washington, was vocalist and Sister M. Aquinette accompanied her at the organ, playing a program of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

The bridal party included Miss Helen Jacob as her sister's maid of honor; Miss Mary Lou Egan, Pittsburgh, Miss Joan Weber, Long Island, N. Y., bridesmaids; William Torrington served as his brother's best man and Ensign John Jacob, John Mackey, R. Donald Shaffer and William Somerville were the ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, was attired in the traditional white satin, trimmed in the same rose point lace worn by her mother at her wedding, and carried a Limerick lace handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Hugh A. McMullen.

Her attendants all wore pearl gray and dusty rose organza gowns. Mrs. Jacob chose a wedgewood blue gown for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Torrington wore a white and green print dress.

The bride is a graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent, Washington, and served two years in the WAVES as a pharmacist mate second class.

The bridegroom, a grandson of the late James A. McHenry, is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., and a veteran of two years duty in the ETO. At present he is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Mrs. Jacob entertained in honor of her daughter and her bridal party, with a wedding reception at the Cumberland Country Club following the ceremony. The bridal party received the guests before a bower of palms, ferns and standards of assorted white flowers. Garlands of smilax and candelabra of tall tapers decorated the brides table, which was centered with a low arrangement of white flowers. A yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations of the tiered wedding cake, adorned with the lacy wedding bell used at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. McMullen, 57 years ago.

After an eastern motor trip, Capt. and Mrs. Torrington will reside in Fayetteville, N. C.

FRUIT MAY BE CANNED WITHOUT USING SUGAR

The best way to get around the sugar situation is to can fruits without sugar and then sweeten to taste before serving. All fruits can be canned successfully without sugar. Simply substitute hot fruit juice or plain boiling water for the syrups called for in most recipes. Prepare the juice by heating well-ripened fruit until soft enough to strain; reheat and use.

For those who want to use sugar the recommended amount for canning under rationing is one pound for four quarts of fruit. However, honey or corn syrup may also be used. It should be noted that tree-ripened fruit requires much less sugar.

Canning with corn syrup: Two cups of corn syrup equal one cup of sugar in sweetness. Both light and dark syrup may be used but the light is preferrable. Corn syrup may be substituted for one-third of the sugar called for in the recipe. When no sugar is used equal parts of light syrup and water should be boiled to make the canning syrup.

Canning with honey: One cup of honey equals one cup of sugar in sweetness. Make sure it is mild-flavored light, strained honey. Honey may be substituted for half the sugar called for in a recipe. If no sugar is used make a syrup of one part strained honey and one part water for acid fruits. For peaches, make syrup two parts of water and one part strained honey.

Canning with invert sugar: This can be made at home and is sweeter than natural sugar syrup. To make it mix two cups of sugar and one cup of water. Add one-fourth teaspoons of tartaric acid. Cover mixture and simmer gently for 30 minutes, and cool. Invert sugar made this way is nearly twice as sweet as plain syrup of the same weight.

BONUSES FOR BABIES

The American birth rate is falling. And fast. Why? Is it true, as many an alarmist insists, that young American wives are too selfish, vain and indulgent to become mothers?

OR IS THE COST OF MODERN MATERNITY TREATMENTS SO HIGH THAT THE AVERAGE YOUNG COUPLE CANT AFFORD A FAMILY?

AND SHOULD UNCLE SAM DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT—QUICK?

Doris Johnston says it is and he should.

Doris and Dad Johnston are the delighted parents of one miraculous small son, aged three months. They'd like to have more. But where'll they find the price?

"Our baby," says Doris, "cost us approximately $350 and that, in any average income, isn't small change. The specialist's bill came to $150, the hospital bill was $130 (and that for a room with three others!) and counting the various medicines and pills taken during the nine months' period the total approximates $350.

"Yes, we certainly want more children but how can we possibly gather together $350 for every child we want? Perhaps, you say, the mother-to-be shouldn't go to a specialist. However, I firmly believe the mother owes it not only to herself but to her husband and child as well, to obtain the best care possible for the future happiness of the family. A run-down, nervous mother is no inspiration for her children. The mother-to-be not only needs the care of a trained obstetrician, she is entitled to it.

"Well then, Elsie, what is the answer? You'll never convince me modern wives don't want children, as I've spoken freely with many of them and the general consensus is, 'Why, yes, Bill and I would love another child but how can we afford it?' And don't fling the old one at us about how grandma and grandpa had seven when grandpa only earned $20 per week. Living was a lot cheaper then and education wasn't nearly as important. As long as Junior got through grammar school, with maybe a smattering of high, he could always work in the local factory and earn $18 per week.

"I say it's high time the government stepped in and worked out a plan. After all, when a man is in the army his wife can have a child at a cost of no more than $30 and still receive the best care. If Uncle Sam wants an increase in the birth rate, how about socializing medicine to a certain degree? Fix a rate on maternity that the average wage earner can afford and make the hospitals knock down on their high-falutin' prices. Then you'll see how your modern girls want babies. Believe me, Elsie, we want 'em—but we want first to be able to afford them."

DORIS F. JOHNSTON
65 Roxbury road, Oceanside,
Long Island, N. Y.

What's the answer? I don't know but I'm all for Doris.

If any project on earth deserves the most scientific treatment, it's motherhood. Our National life depends upon it. Yet, while we spend billions for bombs to insure death, there is neither federal aid nor organization to promote life.

Is Doris's answer a good one? Should the government subsidize childbirth? Should there be socialized medical rates for maternity? Or have you another scheme? Suppose you drop your chores and send us your pet program. This column ants talk like that.

Tests On White Mice To Decide Boy's Fate

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—The fate of a Brooklyn boy hinges on what happens Saturday to several white mice in a City Health Department laboratory.

The boy was bitten by a dog about 10 days ago in Leif Ericson Park Petrolman Stanley Olsen, who saw the dog's attack, shot the animal and told the boy to wait. But the boy fled.

Olsen took the dog to he laboratory, and substance from the dog's brain was injected into white mice there.

Saturday is the deadline. Doctors say if the mice develop rabies, they will die and so will the boy—unless he shows up for belated treatment. If the mice live, the boy's danger is over.

John Small Predicts Period Of Prosperity

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Civilian Production Administration John D. Small said today that this country "can reach a period of prosperity such as we have never known."

Reading the same signs of the times from which Secretary of Commerce Wallace forecast a "boom-and-bust" period, Small came up with a rosier picture of the days ahead.

"If we can only get through the next few months, we can avoid a boom and bust," Small told reporters. "Production is the only way we can get over the hurdle."

Small took the issue with Wallace's view, expressed in an interview Saturday, that the present period of high employment reflects inflationary forces.

Wallace said employment was at or near the goal set in his book, "sixty million jobs," but added that the condition was due to inflationary pressures and continued high government spending. He said it lacked the stability necessary for lasting prosperity.

Small, on the other hand, said: "We have about 57,000,000 persons employed. I believe the tremendous number of people employed is a good thing for the country. I don't believe it's inflationary."

George White Asks For Probation

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP)—George White, 52, New York producer of girl show "Scandals," formally asked for probation in Superior Court here today on his plea of guilty to "hit-and-run" charges in the traffic deaths of a couple on their wedding day, and a hearing was set by Judge Joe L. Shell for Aug. 23.

Shortly before the court appearance, at which the producer's bail was continued at $2,000, he was named defendant in a second civil damage suit.

The suit asked $50,000 for Michael and Patricia Lee, children by a previous marriage of Claude McLester Lee, 42, of Santa Ana, who was killed with his bride, Leona Ann Osborne Lee, 18, in the highway accidnt north of here July 20. A $50,000 suit had previously been brought in behalf of an infant son of the young bride, widow of a soldier killed in the war.

Tests On White Mice To Decide Boy's Fate

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—The fate of a Brooklyn boy hinges on what happens Saturday to several white mice in a City Health Department laboratory.

The boy was bitten by a dog about 10 days ago in Leif Ericson Park. Petrolman Stanley Olsen, who saw the dog's attack, shot the animal and told the boy to wait. But the boy fled.

Olsen took the dog to he laboratory, and substance from the dog's brain was injected into white mice there.

Saturday is the deadline. Doctors say if the mice develop rabies, they will die and so will the boy—unless he shows up for belated treatment. If the mice live, the boy's danger is over.

John Small Predicts Period Of Prosperity

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Civilian Production Administration John D. Small said today that this country "can reach a period of prosperity such as we have never known."

Reading the same signs of the times from which Secretary of Commerce Wallace forecast a "boom-and-bust" period, Small came up with a rosier picture of the days ahead.

"If we can only get through the next few months, we can avoid a boom and bust," Small told reporters. "Production is the only way we can get over the hurdle."

Small took the issue with Wallace's view, expressed in an interview Saturday, that the present period of high employment reflects inflationary forces.

Wallace said employment was at or near the goal set in his book, "sixty million jobs," but added that the condition was due to inflationary pressures and continued high government spending. He said it lacked the stability necessary for lasting prosperity.

Small, on the other hand, said: "We have about 57,000,000 persons employed. I believe the tremendous number of people employed is a good thing for the country. I don't believe it's inflationary."

George White Asks For Probation

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP)—George White, 52, New York producer of girl show "Scandals," formally asked for probation in Superior Court here today on his plea of guilty to "hit-and-run" charges in the traffic deaths of a couple on their wedding day, and a hearing was set by Judge Joe L. Shell for Aug. 23.

Shortly before the court appearance, at which the producer's bail was continued at $2,000, he was named defendant in a second civil damage suit.

The suit asked $50,000 for Michael and Patricia Lee, children by a previous marriage of Claude McLester Lee, 42, of Santa Ana, who was killed with his bride, Leona Ann Osborne Lee, 18, in the highway accident north of here July 20. A $50,000 suit had previously been brought in behalf of an infant son of the young bride, widow of a soldier killed in the war.

Truman Backers Hail Slaughter's Primary Defeat

Enos Axtell, Navy Veteran, Wins By Margin Of 2,301 Votes

[By The Associated Press]

President Truman's supporters yesterday hailed the defeat of Rep. Slaughter (D-Mo) for renomination in Tuesday's primary as a sign of indorsement of administration policies.

Slaughter himself said if the Democratic party is to succeed this fall and in 1948 "the alliance existing between the CIO-Political Action Committee and the Democratic National Committee must be speedily dissolved."

The President, the CIO-PAC, and the Pendergast political organization of Kansas City backed Enos A. Axtell, 37-year-old attorney and Navy veteran, who defeated Slaughter by an unofficial 2,301 votes in a total of 42,880.

Reeves To Oppose Axtell

The vote was Axtell 19,878; Slaughter 17,577, and Jerome Walsh 5,425.

The President had called the Fifth District primary in his home state a test of whether he or Slaughter was right. He based his opposition to the incumbent on the latter's votes against administration measures in the House Rules Committee.

Axtell's Republican opponent will be Albert L. Reeves, Jr., nominated without opposition. Reeves, also a veteran, is the son of a long-time federal district judge in Missouri.

A second congressman — Rep. Ralph H. Daughton (D-Va)—was defeated in the Tuesday balloting in six states, bringing to 14 the total House members thus far failing of renomination. Thirteen of them are Democrats. Five senators have lost out.

While the CIO-PAC backed a winner in the national-watched Missouri Fifth District, it lost in its effort to eliminate Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va), who won easily over Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond attorney. Byrd said he had been No. 1 on the labor organization's "purge list."

Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic National Chairman, issued a statement on his home state primary saying that by the defeat of Slaughter "the people of the Fifth District of Missouri have registered a strong vote of confidence in President Harry S. Truman—confidence which is shared by the people of the nation."

Kilgore Wins In West Virginia

"The people of Missouri," he said, "were aware of Mr. Slaughter's consistent opposition to the policies of the Truman administration, which are a faithful continuation of the policies of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. In rejecting Mr. Slaughter they were registering their approval of those policies."

Rep. Sabath (D-Ill), chairman of the Rules Committee of which Slaughter is a member, commented that the Slaughter defeat "shows that notwithstanding the Republican effort to nominate Slaughter the people are following the Roosevelt-Truman policy. Axtell was nominated because he is following those policies. xxx Slaughter was not in accord with the policy and principles of the President and the party, and was in fact opposed to everything the Democratic party stood for."

Further tabulations of Tuesday votes in West Virginia showed these results:

Democratic senatorial: Won by Sen. Harley M. Kilgore. Republican: Thomas B. Sweeney, former state senator. Six incumbent members renominated.

ESCAPES FROM GRAVE—Janie Venable Gantt, 19-year-old mother of a 3-year-old son, kneels inside a crude grave at Atlanta, Ga., which she told police was dug for her. She testified in Fulton Civil Court yesterday that her estranged husband, William Lee Gantt, Jr., forced her into the grave at knife point. She escaped when he left her alone in the hole thinking she could not climb out, she said.

Woman Declares Mate Forced Her Into Crude Grave

Navy Veteran William Gantt, Jr., Denies Drawing Knife On Wife

ATLANTA, Aug. 7. (AP)—"We'd been having some family trouble."

That was William Lee Gantt, Jr.'s, comment today to charges of his pretty, 19-year-old estranged wife that he hurled her into a crudely-dug grave and gave her a choice of death "by stabbing or shooting."

Blonde Janie Venable Gantt, mother of a 3-year-old boy, testified in Fulton Civil Court that her husband waylaid her yesterday as she was returning to work from lunch, brandished an open knife and drove her to a wooded section behind a city park.

There, she said, he forced her into a bramble-surrounded grave he had dug and told her he was going to keep her "till the first of September."

Escaped With Aid Of Shovel

"Then," she asserted, "he was going to kill me—by stabbing or shooting—and bury me in it. He said he was coming out to me every night but was going to leave me there every day."

Mrs. Gantt said she escaped by persuading her husband to go to get her something to eat.

"He went off," she explained, "thinking I could not get out of the hole. Soon after he was gone, I got the shovel he had used and propped it against the side and climbed out.

"I ran as fast as I could—through the bushes and briars—and finally came out to some street near there. I guess I looked pretty bad—all scratched up, and with my hair down. A man in a car stopped and asked me if I was in trouble and took me home. I don't know who he was."

Gantt Bound Over To Jury

Judge J. Wilson Parker put Gantt under $1,000 bond and bound him over to the grand jury on a peace warrant.

Gantt, age 23, and just out of the Navy, denied that he drew a knife on his wife. He told the court he did mechanical work but was out of a job.

His wife is employed as a secretary.

Diminutive Mrs. Gantt said that as she and her husband neared the crudely-dug grave, he told her:

"If I can't have you nobody's going to."

"All the way," she added, "he kept telling me about the snakes and bugs in the woods. He knows how scared I am of things like that."

She said Gantt had a rope and was going to tie her in the grave but she talked him out of that.

Two Graves Are Opened In Probe Of Poison Deaths

One Is Quarter Century Old, Woman, 76, Charged With Murder

FAIRFIELD, Ill., Aug. 7 (AP) — Authorities who said they found two members of a farm family died of arsenic poisoning today opened two graves—one a quarter century old—to investigate the cause of two more deaths in the same family.

The inquiry began June 15 with the death of 3-year-old Donald Eugene Martin, son of an Army private. A coroner's jury attributed his death to arsenic poisoning.

State's Attorney Virgil M. Mills, following a coroner's jury's recommendation July 26, charged the boy's great grandmother, Mrs. Lillie B. Winter, a frail little woman of 76, with murder. The coroner's jury recommended Mrs. Winter be held for grand jury investigation. Mrs. Winter has denied the charge.

Earlier, on July 15, the body of the boy's great grand uncle, Clinton Clark, a bachelor farmer, was exhumed. He was 67 when he died in 1941 and was believed a victim of heart disease. He was Mrs. Winter's brother.

Mills said that a chemist's analysis determined that Clark's death was due to 5.1 grains of arsenic found in his stomach.

The graves opened today, Coroner Walter A. Young said, were those of Mrs. Winter's sister, Mrs. Lorena Clark, who was buried in 1921, and Mrs. Winter's husband, Bert, who died in 1942.

Mills and Sheriff Delbert Morris took the stomachs of the bodies to the St. Louis laboratory of Dr. H. E. Wiedeman for analysis. Dr. Wiedeman said "a week, possibly two weeks" would be required to complete his examination. Coroner Young said the stomach of Mrs. Clark was so deteriorated an analysis might be impossible.

Chief of Detectives Herman Siebels, St. Louis, said a lie detector examination of Mrs. Winter on Sunday was "inconclusive" because of her age and physical condition.

Boy Senators Adjourn To See Ball Game After Voting To Extend Draft

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Legislative activities of the National Boys' Senate ended abruptly late today on a motion to adjourn "so we can go to the ball game."

The 96 members roared their approval, although a point of order might well have been raised that the Washington club has only a shaky hold on fourth place in the American League.

Before quitting, the boys brought here by the American Legion to try their hand at "government" had voted to extend the draft law, killed a bill to equalize freight rates over the nation, and apparently were headed into a poll tax filibuster.

They met in the marble caucus room of the Senate Office Building, had the usual difficulty with the amplifying equipment, and appeared to invent their own parliamentary rules as they went along.

"We are hereby ready to accept bills. Bring forth," invited one of the three alternate presiding officers at one point.

In comparison with their elders, the boy senators wore fewer neckties, brighter sox, more crew haircuts and no bald heads. The legislative flavor was there all the same.

A dozen sport-jacketed "senators" clamored for recognition immediately upon introduction of the anti-poll tax bill. Victor Dzewaltowski, a member from Vermont, moved to lay aside the rules, skip committee consideration and vote on it immediately.

Outshouted, he withdrew his motion, permitting the bill to go to a committee which appeared to be dominated by southern youths thoroughly opposed to it. Advocates began circulating a "gag" petition, but adjournment for the ball game halted further action.

United States Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), told the delegates during the afternoon session that while he thoroughly approved of their excursion into legislative practice he believed they should have organized more than one party, as they did.

"Having just one party might seem very well if you wanted to belong to that party," he observed, "but I want to remind you that is not the best and healthiest thing for the United States.

"A Senate should have two parties, so that the vices as well as the virtues of specific legislation may be pointed out."

The boys took time out between morning and afternoon sessions to tour the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Tomorrow they will visit the Supreme Court, meet Interior Secretary Krug, and tour Annapolis. Friday morning they are to meet President Truman.

"I am very happy," Byrnes said, "that the gentlemen interested in offering amendments have concluded that the text suggested by the Council of Foreign Ministers should be adopted. The proposal of the council gives the greatest possible discretion to members in presenting their views."

The two Byrnes amendments were adopted readily, one with a minor alteration suggested by Russia.

The committee passed without discussion the American amendment making it impossible for a delegate of any of the Big Four to sit as chairman on any of the commissions which study treaties and economic and military matters. It also provided that a single delegation might hold only one chairmanship.

The amendment was aimed at spreading key positions among the nations and preventing the major powers who prepared the drafts from directing the work of the commissions studying them.

State's Attorney Virgil M. Mills, following a coroner's jury's recommendation July 26, charged the boy's great grandmother, Mrs. Lillie B. Winter, a frail little woman of 76, with murder. The coroner's jury recommended Mrs. Winter be held for grand jury investigation. Mrs. Winter has denied the charge.

Earlier, on July 15, the body of the boy's great grand uncle, Clinton Clark, a bachelor farmer, was exhumed. He was 67 when he died in 1941 and was believed a victim of heart disease. He was Mrs. Winter's brother.

Mills said that a chemist's analysis determined that Clark's death was due to 5.1 grains of arsenic found in his stomach.

The graves opened today, Coroner Walter A. Young said, were those of Mrs. Winter's sister, Mrs. Lorena Clark, who was buried in 1921, and Mrs. Winter's husband, Bert, who died in 1942.

Mills and Sheriff Delbert Morris took the stomachs of the bodies to the St. Louis laboratory of Dr. H. E. Wiedeman for analysis. Dr. Wiedeman said "a week, possibly two weeks" would be required to complete his examination. Coroner Young said the stomach of Mrs. Clark was so deteriorated an analysis might be impossible.

Chief of Detectives Herman Siebels, St. Louis, said a lie detector examination of Mrs. Winter on Sunday was "inconclusive" because of her age and physical condition.

Boy Senators Adjourn To See Ball Game After Voting To Extend Draft

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) — Legislative activities of the National Boys' Senate ended abruptly late today on a motion to adjourn "so we can go to the ball game."

The 96 members roared their approval, although a point of order might well have been raised that the Washington club has only a shaky hold on fourth place in the American League.

Before quitting, the boys brought here by the American Legion to try their hand at "government" had voted to extend the draft law, killed a bill to equalize freight rates over the nation, and apparently were headed into a poll tax filibuster.

They met in the marble caucus room of the Senate Office Building, had the usual difficulty with the amplifying equipment, and appeared to invent their own parliamentary rules as they went along.

"We are hereby ready to accept bills. Bring forth," invited one of the three alternate presiding officers at one point.

In comparison with their elders, the boy senators wore fewer neckties, brighter sox, more crew haircuts and no bald heads. The legislative flavor was there all the same.

A dozen sport-jacketed "senators" clamored for recognition immediately upon introduction of the anti-poll tax bill. Victor Dzewaltowski, a member from Vermont, moved to lay aside the rules, skip committee consideration and vote on it immediately.

Outshouted, he withdrew his motion, permitting the bill to go to a committee which appeared to be dominated by southern youths thoroughly opposed to it. Advocates began circulating a "gag" petition, but adjournment for the ball game halted further action.

United States Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), told the delegates during the afternoon session that while he thoroughly approved of their excursion into legislative practice he believed they should have organized more than one party, as they did.

"Having just one party might seem very well if you wanted to belong to that party," he observed, "but I want to remind you that is not the best and healthiest thing for the United States.

"A Senate should have two parties, so that the vices as well as the virtues of specific legislation may be pointed out."

The boys took time out between morning and afternoon sessions to tour the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Tomorrow they will visit the Supreme Court, meet Interior Secretary Krug, and tour Annapolis. Friday morning they are to meet President Truman.

same effect as the adopted British amendment in the plenary sessions. The Netherlands, so that the conference would not be delayed further, withdrew an amendment which would have called for simple majority votes in committees.

"I am very happy," Byrnes said, "that the gentlemen interested in offering amendments have concluded that the text suggested by the Council of Foreign Ministers should be adopted. The proposal of the council gives the greatest possible discretion to members in presenting their views."

The two Byrnes amendments were adopted readily, one with a minor alteration suggested by Russia.

The committee passed without discussion the American amendment making it impossible for a delegate of any of the Big Four to sit as chairman on any of the commissions which study treaties and economic and military matters. It also provided that a single delegation might hold only one chairmanship.

The amendment was aimed at spreading key positions among the nations and preventing the major powers who prepared the drafts from directing the work of the commissions studying them.

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 7.—Loretta Young moves straight from "Katie For Congress" on the RKO lot to "Magic Town" in which she'll co-star with Jimmy Stewart. It's good news to Loretta's friends that she is competely recovered from her illness and feels so well she doesn't want or need a vacation between movies. She reports for the picture with Jimmy September 1 with Robert Riskin producing and William Wellman directing.

In this yarn Jimmy plays the head of a national poll service who gets lazy on the job and starts compiling all "national" opinions from the populace of a small town whose citizens have a gift for going against the popular trend. Sort of harks back to the Hoover-Roosevelt election of years ago when a magazine "polled" the nation and predicted that Hoover would carry all but two states. Said Mag has been resting in peace ever since.

Twenty years ago George Jessel made a picture at Warners called "Private Izzy Murphy," which was produced by Darryl Zanuck and directed by Lloyd Bacon. Now, 20 years later, the trio is together again but on the 20th Century-Fox lot. Georgie's producing "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" for Zanuck with Bacon directing. It's beginning to look as if these three were permanently hitched. The other day Bacon walked in with an original story titled "Mine On Sunday" which George liked so much he whipped up the screenplay in nothing flat and got Zanuck's "go" sign on it to follow the "kiss" picture. What's it about? Well, if Bacon and George told that it might no longer be an "original" story.

Zachary Scott, finding himself with a little extra money on hand (lucky guy) had a talk with his wife about what to do with it. They could (1) invest it in a new play Zach knew about, or (2) buy her a new fur coat. Mrs. Scott decided that the play was the best investment. If it went over, as expected, she could have two fur coats. That was several months ago. The other night Scott came home with a long face. "Darling," he said, "I'm sorry to have to tell you, but your coat closed in Philadelphia last night!"

Met Kenny Delmar (Senator Claghorn) and his wife at Harriet Parsons' party at the Cabana Club and Delmar is as charming and subdued as Claghorn is loud and brassy. His wife, a very attractive redhead, loves California after years of living in New York and thinks this is paradise. "But I am a completely happy woman," she said. "I have Kenny, and our little five-year-old son—and," she laughed, "a mink coat. I'm so happy, I think a lot of our friends think I am a little crazy." That's the nicest way to be crazy I ever heard of. Rudy Vallee wasn't in Harriet's party. But he attracted a lot of attention with his new very, very blonde hair, s'help me, he looked jus like Van Johnson and just as young. Emil Coleman's music is dreamy at this spot.

Somebody's been writing on my typewriter again—and it's Louella O. Parsons. For the rest of this column it's your favorite reporter covering the news today. Writes Lop:

I talked with Clark Gable over the phone. My, I was glad to hear his voice. I like Clark—we always have fun. I said, "I hear you are buying Greta Garbo's house in New York." "What?" he laugned, "another house! heavens, no! I have enough trouble running my ranch. Then he told me he had seen "Men In White" re-run at the studio and he was surprised how much shorter it was than the pictures being made now. "As for 'The Hucksters'," said Clark, "if MGM can make a good story out of it, I'll do it. In fact, MGM and I are just about to forget our differences and get together." I'm glad to hear that.

Hollywood in shorts: (Still Lop reporting): Dont tell my doctors or favorite boss—but I went to two parties. Aren't I the gay one? Sonja Henie gave the biggest all-star party since the Academy awards. I sat at Sonja's table, next to Stuart Barthelmess, Dick and Jessie's boy, who is her current heart flutter. Both Norma and Joan Crawford wear a sort of a side-swept coiffure that's new since I've been out of circulation. Mary and Jack Benny, the bill Powells and the Danny Kayes were all there and many others. . . . .The next night, Fefe Ferry, one of my favorite people, gave a small, charming dinner honoring Elsa Maxwell. Castleman River Train Renews Run As Strike Ends

The three-man strike against the Castleman River Railroad Company in Garrett County ended yesterday with men making the usual run to Worth, Pa., but terms of the settlement could not be learned.

Charles Zeller, office manager of the Burnwell Coal Company reported last night that the train, idle since last Wednesday night when the three-man crew struck for a wage increase, carried eight coal cars, loaded Friday, to Worth, Pa., yesterday.

Zeller, who isn't connected with the railroad, said he knew nothing of the settlement terms but he was sure the strike has ended because the train carried their cars out. He added that two empties were brought back from Worth last night.

The three men Harry Hoover, engineer; Bruce Yommer, conductor, and Stanley Wiley, fireman, struck Wednesday a week ago when they said John Hersker, owner of the railroad, refused to raise their wages to standards paid on other railroads.

The strike virtually halted operations of four Garrett County companies and put approximately 150 men out of work.

Zeller said last night that the Burnwell mine, one of the companies stranded by the strike, has resumed operations at full productions.

He said the Union Fire Brick Company and Petit Lumber Company also were working again.

Neither Hersker nor any of the railroad employes could be reached for comment last night. Zeller said he was informed by Dewy Yommer, railroad superintendent, that the strike was settled and the coal mined during the past week would be carried to Worth. "That is all I know about the situation," Zeller said.

The railroad built about 50 years ago runs over only 14 miles of track from Jennings, Md., to Worth, Pa., where it connects with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Despite its size, Zeller said last night, "it had the whoe county tied up. We are happy it has ended."

Two Boys Break Right Arms In Falls Here

Also treated in Memorial for a fractured right arm was Joseph Buron, 9-year-old son of Edward Buron, 9232 Baltimore avenue, Chicago, after he fell from the platform of a truck at 11:25 a. m., attaches were told.

Mrs. Bertha Granger, 61, 704 Shade's lane, was treated in Allegany hospital yesterday at 2 p. m. for a puncture wound of the right foot after she stepped on a rusty nail.

The speaker said "we spend 12 years trying to teach children the use of proper English, but the student will say on graduation day, 'it is me,' because he hears it so many other places than in the school.

Kopp suggested that each individual, who desires a better community and who is genuinely concerned about delinquency, should strive to create a better environment for children and all people.

The speaker was introduced by James Alfred Avirett.

Castleman River Train Renews Run As Strike Ends

The three-man strike against the Castleman River Railroad Company in Garrett County ended yesterday with men making the usual run to Worth, Pa., but terms of the settlement could not be learned.

Charles Zeller, office manager of the Burnwell Coal Company reported last night that the train, idle since last Wednesday night when the three-man crew struck for a wage increase, carried eight coal cars, loaded Friday, to Worth, Pa., yesterday.

Zeller, who isn't connected with the railroad, said he knew nothing of the settlement terms but he was sure the strike has ended because the train carried their cars out. He added that two empties were brought back from Worth last night.

The three men Harry Hoover, engineer; Bruce Yommer, conductor, and Stanley Wiley, fireman, struck Wednesday a week ago when they said John Hersker, owner of the railroad, refused to raise their wages to standards paid on other railroads.

The strike virtually halted operations of four Garrett County companies and put approximately 150 men out of work.

Zeller said last night that the Burnwell mine, one of the companies stranded by the strike, has resumed operations at full productions.

He said the Union Fire Brick Company and Petit Lumber Company also were working again.

Neither Hersker nor any of the railroad employes could be reached for comment last night. Zeller said he was informed by Dewy Yommer, railroad superintendent, that the strike was settled and the coal mined during the past week would be carried to Worth. "That is all I know about the situation," Zeller said.

The railroad built about 50 years ago runs over only 14 miles of track from Jennings, Md., to Worth, Pa., where it connects with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Despite its size, Zeller said last night, "it had the whoe county tied up. We are happy it has ended."

Moose Beats Caseys, 3-1; Outdoor Stops Elks, 4-1

Knights' 4-Year Reign In Chair Loop Ends; Elks And Outdoor Series To Go Three Game Limit

The Knights of Columbus passed out of the championship picture in the Rocking Chair Softball League for the first time in five years when they bowed to the Loyal Order of Moose yesterday at Fort Hill field. The score was 3 to 1.

Champions of the circuit for four successive years, the Caseys were eliminated from the Shaughnessy playoff series in two straight games by the team which they conquered to capture the league title last September.

The victory advanced the Moose tossers to the final series for the championship which will get under way next week. Their opponents will not be known until tomorrow evening due to the Cumberland Outdoor Club defeating the B. P. O. Elks yesterday by the score of 4-1 and squaring their best-of-three-games series at Taylor field. The "rubber" game is scheduled for Allegany field, Campobello, at 6 o'clock.

Minnicks's Hit Wins

Jim Angellatta emerged the winner over Anthony "Bud" Scaletta as the Moose ten emerged triumphant. The Moose outfit scored one run in the fifth on Carl Rossi's triple and Lonnie Jackson's single and sewed up the game with two more tallies in the sixth. Russ Minnicks's single following hits by Jim Angellatta and Evans sent over what proved to be the deciding run and an error by Browning in centerfield enabled Evans to trot home with the final marker.

Angellatta had a shut out victory within his grasp until the seventh and final frame when Joe Neubiser, pinch-hitting for Scaletta, drove in Ray Swach with the Knights' lone tally.

Each team garnered eight hits. Sammy DeLuca accounted for two of the Caseys' safeties with a pair of doubles while T. K. Evans obtained three singles to head the Moose stickers.

Weltman Halts Elks

Defeated in four previous games this season, the Outdoor Club surprised the Elks as "Fats" Weltman tossed a four-hitter at Taylor field to snap the B. P. O. E.'s winning streak which had extended over eleven games.

Van Johnson was the "big gun" for the Outdoor Club, exploding a single which sent over two runs in the first inning and a triple which produced another tally in the fourth following a fly to the outfield.

Two-baggers by Van Roby and Mel Henry in the fourth averted a shutout defeat for the Elks. The Elks had three runners on the hassocks in the fourth and two aboard in the seventh but they were unable to fathom Weltman in the pinches.

Roby, of the Elks, and Johnson, of the Outdoor, had two hits each.

The defeat snapped the eight-game winning streak of Jimmie Wilkinson, whose last setback was recorded on July 11. The scores:

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP) — Despite their lowly sixth-place position in the National League race, the New York Giants expect to join the city's two other major teams, Brooklyn's Dodgers and the New York Yankees, in the 1,000,000 home paid attendance club for 1946, soon.

The bumper 51,403 turnout for last night's Dodger contest boosted the Polo Grounders turnstile total to 936,491. The Dodgers, always a big draw in Manhattan, have four more road games to play with the Giants.

Pirates To Hold Guild Election

Players Directed To Vote On Collective Bargaining Aug. 20

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board directed today that an election be held August 20 to determine if the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club shall be represented by the American Baseball Guild as its collective bargaining agent.

The action was taken on a petition by Robert Murphy, representing the Guild, and followed a hearing in Pittsburgh July 16 on whether the state board had jurisdiction in the case.

Thirty-one players may vote on the question:

"Do you desire the American Baseball Guild to represent you exclusively for the purposes of collective bargaining with your employer, the Pittsburgh Athletic Company, Inc.?"

Murphy claimed the Guild holds cards of 26 of the players.

Comment Is Withheld

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7 (AP)—With sale of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club to a new owner expected anytime within the next 24 to 72 hours, officials said tonight they will "let slide" till Saturday any comment on the Pennsylvania Labor Relation Board order taking jurisdiction in a dispute between the club and the American Baseball Guild.

Seward H. French, club attorney, said he had talked with President William E. Benswanger and that they had agreed not to comment at this time.

Browns Nose Out Tigers On Trout's Wild Throw, 3-2

Dizzy Tosses Game Away Attempting To Pick Heath Off Third

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7 — Paul (Dizzy) Trout's wild throw in an attempt to pick Jeff Heath off third base in the sixth inning let in what proved to be the deciding run tonight as the St. Louis Browns edged out the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2, for an even break in their two-game series.

Outhit, 12 to 6, the Browns decided the issue by making two singles and Trout's wild heave good for two tallies in the sixth whereas the Tigers were able to manufacture only two runs on five singles and Hank Helf's throw into center field in the fifth.

The decision was the third against seven losses for Bob Muncrief and the 11th setback for Trout who has nine victories. Box:

BUGGY-WHIP DERBY IS SET FOR TODAY

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—For the fourth time since it was established back in 1926, The Hambletonian tangled with old man weather today, and the scheduled 21st running of the buggy-whip derby was postponed until tomorrow—provided the old man gives it the green light then.

Today's setback was the first since 1937 and wasn't decided until 9:30 a. m., when hundreds of the anticipated 25,000 to 30,000 crowd were already on the roads to Bill Cane's quaint Good Time track.

STATE GAME WARDEN APPEALS TO FARMERS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ernest A. Vaughn, state game warden, today renewed his long-standing plea that farmers leave a few feet of their crops along fence rows so game girds will have food during the winter.

Vaughn suggested that sportsmen offer farmers reimbursment for the practice, putting it up to hunters to approach owners of farms on which they customarily hunt.

He also pointed out that sports clubs might raise money to pay farmers for the practice.

Moose Beats Caseys, 3-1; Outdoor Stops Elks, 4-1

Knights' 4-Year Reign In Chair Loop Ends; Elks And Outdoor Series To Go Three Game Limit

The Knights of Columbus passed out of the championship picture in the Rocking Chair Softball League for the first time in five years when they bowed to the Loyal Order of Moose yesterday at Fort Hill field. The score was 3 to 1.

Champions of the circuit for four successive years, the Caseys were eliminated from the Shaughnessy playoff series in two straight games by the team which they conquered to capture the league title last September.

The victory advanced the Moose tossers to the final series for the championship which will get under way next week. Their opponents will not be known until tomorrow evening due to the Cumberland Outdoor Club defeating the B. P. O. Elks yesterday by the score of 4-1 and squaring their best-of-three-games series at Taylor field. The "rubber" game is scheduled for Allegany field, Campobello, at 6 o'clock.

Minnicks's Hit Wins

Jim Angellatta emerged the winner over Anthony "Bud" Scaletta as the Moose ten emerged triumphant. The Moose outfit scored one run in the fifth on Carl Rossi's triple and Lonnie Jackson's single and sewed up the game with two more tallies in the sixth. Russ Minnicks's single following hits by Jim Angellatta and Evans sent over what proved to be the deciding run and an error by Browning in centerfield enabled Evans to trot home with the final marker.

Angellatta had a shut out victory within his grasp until the seventh and final frame when Joe Neubiser, pinch-hitting for Scaletta, drove in Ray Swach with the Knights' lone tally.

Each team garnered eight hits. Sammy DeLuca accounted for two of the Caseys' safeties with a pair of doubles while T. K. Evans obtained three singles to head the Moose stickers.

Weltman Halts Elks

Defeated in four previous games this season, the Outdoor Club surprised the Elks as "Fats" Weltman tossed a four-hitter at Taylor field to snap the B. P. O. E.'s winning streak which had extended over eleven games.

Van Johnson was the "big gun" for the Outdoor Club, exploding a single which sent over two runs in the first inning and a triple which produced another tally in the fourth following a fly to the outfield.

Two-baggers by Van Roby and Mel Henry in the fourth averted a shutout defeat for the Elks. The Elks had three runners on the hassocks in the fourth and two aboard in the seventh but they were unable to fathom Weltman in the pinches.

Roby, of the Elks, and Johnson, of the Outdoor, had two hits each.

The defeat snapped the eight-game winning streak of Jimmie Wilkinson, whose last setback was recorded on July 11. The scores:

Pirates To Hold Guild Election

Players Directed To Vote On Collective Bargaining Aug. 20

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board directed today that an election be held August 20 to determine if the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club shall be represented by the American Baseball Guild as its collective bargaining agent.

The action was taken on a petition by Robert Murphy, representing the Guild, and followed a hearing in Pittsburgh July 16 on whether the state board had jurisdiction in the case.

Thirty-one players may vote on the question:

"Do you desire the American Baseball Guild to represent you exclusively for the purposes of collective bargaining with your employer, the Pittsburgh Athletic Company, Inc.?"

Murphy claimed the Guild holds cards of 26 of the players.

Comment Is Withheld

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7 (AP)—With sale of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club to a new owner expected anytime within the next 24 to 72 hours, officials said tonight they will "let slide" till Saturday any comment on the Pennsylvania Labor Relation Board order taking jurisdiction in a dispute between the club and the American Baseball Guild.

Seward H. French, club attorney, said he had talked with President William E. Benswanger and that they had agreed not to comment at this time.

Browns Nose Out Tigers On Trout's Wild Throw, 3-2

Dizzy Tosses Game Away Attempting To Pick Heath Off Third

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7 — Paul (Dizzy) Trout's wild throw in an attempt to pick Jeff Heath off third base in the sixth inning let in what proved to be the deciding run tonight as the St. Louis Browns edged out the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2, for an even break in their two-game series.

Outhit, 12 to 6, the Browns decided the issue by making two singles and Trout's wild heave good for two tallies in the sixth whereas the Tigers were able to manufacture only two runs on five singles and Hank Helf's throw into center field in the fifth.

The decision was the third against seven losses for Bob Muncrief and the 11th setback for Trout who has nine victories. Box:

BUGGY-WHIP DERBY IS SET FOR TODAY

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—For the fourth time since it was established back in 1926, The Hambletonian tangled with old man weather today, and the scheduled 21st running of the buggy-whip derby was postponed until tomorrow—provided the old man gives it the green light then.

Today's setback was the first since 1937 and wasn't decided until 9:30 a. m., when hundreds of the anticipated 25,000 to 30,000 crowd were already on the roads to Bill Cane's quaint Good Time track.

STATE GAME WARDEN APPEALS TO FARMERS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—Ernest A. Vaughn, state game warden, today renewed his long-standing plea that farmers leave a few feet of their crops along fence rows so game girds will have food during the winter.

Vaughn suggested that sportsmen offer farmers reimbursment for the practice, putting it up to hunters to approach owners of farms on which they customarily hunt.

He also pointed out that sports clubs might raise money to pay farmers for the practice.

Harford County's Grand Jury Gets Race Ringer Case

Middleton, Mink Ordered Held For Alleged Substitution

BEL AIR, Md., Aug. 7 (AP) — Magistrate Paul Cronin ordered today that a "ringer" case involving two Wilmington, Del., horsemen be referred to the September Harford County Grand Jury.

Paul E. Middleton and William F. Mink of Wilmington are charged with conspiracy to defraud and attempting to defraud the Harford County Fair Association by allegedly substituting the horse Don't Delay for All Flo at Bel Air track July 24.

Several trainers and track officials testified at a lengthy hearing that a horse entered in the first race as All Flo and owned by Mink, actually was Don't Delay, owned by Middleton. Stewards ordered the horse scratched just before the race when its identity was questioned.

Meanwhile, Cronin ordered bail of $2,000 for Middleton and $1,500 for Mink continued.

One of the last witnesses was Robert Drummond, Mink's trainer, who testified that he received pay from Middleston once in 1945, and from Mink this year, "but could get money from either one."

Drummond said he took the real All Flo, "then a green horse," to the Charles Town, W. Va., track, in 1945. This year, he testified, Don't Delay was shipped from his Delaware farm to Charles Town but Drummond said he did not know the horse wasn't All Flo.

The trainer said that Mink told him before sending him the horse that it had been worked hard and was run down a bit, and because of this Drummond failed to recognize the switch.

No witnesses were offered by the defense, although Paul I. Rinard, counsel for the horsemen, said he was certain there had been a "legitimate mistake" when the wrong horse was sent from Delaware. Rinard did not contest the claimed identity of the horse scratched at Bel Air.

After winning one of four Charles Town starts at $11 to $1, Don't Delay was sent to Bel Air.

Frank R. Bassnett, Bel Air entry clerk, testified that Drummond entered the horse under the name of All Flo for the July 24 race.

Trainers Henry Bowyer—former owner of Don't Delay—and E. Bonwell testified they were certain the horse in question was Don't Delay.

Identifies Don't Delay

It was Bowyer who said he noticed Don't Delay in the paddock at Bel Air, but didn't see the horse's name on the program.

"I immediately recognized him," Bowyer said, and notified the stewards.

"Horses have charactristics like human beings, I suppose," Bowyer told the court. He said he recognized the horse, which he purchased at the Lexington, Ky., yearling sale, from leg scars, the small size of his ears, and his "odd way of standing."

Bonwell said he claimed Don't Delay for C. L. Leech, and another trainer, Robert Dean of Laurel, Md., said he claimed the horse last spring from Leech for $2,000, for Mrs. Anita Garisto of Delaware.

Mrs. Garisto sold the horse to Middleton.

George P. Mahoney, Maryland Racing Commission chairman who attended the hearing, said recently that saliva tests taken July 24 showed that the horse in question had been drugged.

Horsemen Banned In West Virginia

Middleton, Mink Barred Until They Return Purses Collected

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP) —The West Virginia Racing Commission today barred William F. Mink and Paul E. Middleton, both of Wilmington, Del., from all tracks under its jurisdiction because it said they raced one horse under another's name at the Charles Town track.

The commission said the two "raced the horse "Don't Delay under the name of the horse All Flo, on four occasions during the recent race meet of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., the said horse having won one race and having run third in another."

Mink is the owner of All Flo and Middleton the owner of Don't Delay, a horse claimed for $2,000 at Havre de Grace last spring.

The commission also barred the two horses until all refunds of purses collected as a result of the action are returned to the Charles Town Jockey Club.

A copy of the notice and of other information obtained by the commission was sent to the prosecuting attorney of Jefferson county "for such other action as he may deem proper in the premises."

A horse entered under the name of All Flo was scratched from the first day's racing at Bel Air Md., July 24 on the charge that it actually was Don't Delay. Mink and Middleton were arrested and charged there with conspiracy to defraud the Harford County Fair Association, sponsors of the racing meet.

Preliminary hearings on the charges were scheduled there today.

The West Virginia action was based partly on information gathered by the Maryland Racing Commission.

Harford County's Grand Jury Gets Race Ringer Case

Middleton, Mink Ordered Held For Alleged Substitution

BEL AIR, Md., Aug. 7 (AP) — Magistrate Paul Cronin ordered today that a "ringer" case involving two Wilmington, Del., horsemen be referred to the September Harford County Grand Jury.

Paul E. Middleton and William F. Mink of Wilmington are charged with conspiracy to defraud and attempting to defraud the Harford County Fair Association by allegedly substituting the horse Don't Delay for All Flo at Bel Air track July 24.

Several trainers and track officials testified at a lengthy hearing that a horse entered in the first race as All Flo and owned by Mink, actually was Don't Delay, owned by Middleton. Stewards ordered the horse scratched just before the race when its identity was questioned.

Meanwhile, Cronin ordered bail of $2,000 for Middleton and $1,500 for Mink continued.

One of the last witnesses was Robert Drummond, Mink's trainer, who testified that he received pay from Middleston once in 1945, and from Mink this year, "but could get money from either one."

Drummond said he took the real All Flo, "then a green horse," to the Charles Town, W. Va., track, in 1945. This year, he testified, Don't Delay was shipped from his Delaware farm to Charles Town but Drummond said he did not know the horse wasn't All Flo.

The trainer said that Mink told him before sending him the horse that it had been worked hard and was run down a bit, and because of this Drummond failed to recognize the switch.

No witnesses were offered by the defense, although Paul I. Rinard, counsel for the horsemen, said he was certain there had been a "legitimate mistake" when the wrong horse was sent from Delaware. Rinard did not contest the claimed identity of the horse scratched at Bel Air.

After winning one of four Charles Town starts at $11 to $1, Don't Delay was sent to Bel Air.

Frank R. Bassnett, Bel Air entry clerk, testified that Drummond entered the horse under the name of All Flo for the July 24 race.

Trainers Henry Bowyer—former owner of Don't Delay—and E. Bonwell testified they were certain the horse in question was Don't Delay.

Identifies Don't Delay

It was Bowyer who said he noticed Don't Delay in the paddock at Bel Air, but didn't see the horse's name on the program.

"I immediately recognized him," Bowyer said, and notified the stewards.

"Horses have charactristics like human beings, I suppose," Bowyer told the court. He said he recognized the horse, which he purchased at the Lexington, Ky., yearling sale, from leg scars, the small size of his ears, and his "odd way of standing."

Bonwell said he claimed Don't Delay for C. L. Leech, and another trainer, Robert Dean of Laurel, Md., said he claimed the horse last spring from Leech for $2,000, for Mrs. Anita Garisto of Delaware.

Mrs. Garisto sold the horse to Middleton.

George P. Mahoney, Maryland Racing Commission chairman who attended the hearing, said recently that saliva tests taken July 24 showed that the horse in question had been drugged.

Horsemen Banned In West Virginia

Middleton, Mink Barred Until They Return Purses Collected

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7 (AP) —The West Virginia Racing Commission today barred William F. Mink and Paul E. Middleton, both of Wilmington, Del., from all tracks under its jurisdiction because it said they raced one horse under another's name at the Charles Town track.

The commission said the two "raced the horse "Don't Delay under the name of the horse All Flo, on four occasions during the recent race meet of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., the said horse having won one race and having run third in another."

Mink is the owner of All Flo and Middleton the owner of Don't Delay, a horse claimed for $2,000 at Havre de Grace last spring.

The commission also barred the two horses until all refunds of purses collected as a result of the action are returned to the Charles Town Jockey Club.

A copy of the notice and of other information obtained by the commission was sent to the prosecuting attorney of Jefferson county "for such other action as he may deem proper in the premises."

A horse entered under the name of All Flo was scratched from the first day's racing at Bel Air Md., July 24 on the charge that it actually was Don't Delay. Mink and Middleton were arrested and charged there with conspiracy to defraud the Harford County Fair Association, sponsors of the racing meet.

Preliminary hearings on the charges were scheduled there today.

The West Virginia action was based partly on information gathered by the Maryland Racing Commission.

• IT'S HAPPENED 42 MILLION TIMES!

"RIVERSIDES... didn't come on my own I CHOSE THEM"

"AND I SEE A LOT OF OTHER PEOPLE ARE SWITCHING TO RIVERSIDES, TOO!"

Yes, more and more motorists are buying Riversides! Over 42 million Riversides have been chosen, in preference to tires that come on cars, in preference to all other makes of tires! It couldn't happen so often without some mighty good reasons!

NOTE: Ask about Wards "MIRACLE" Inner Tubes! The tubes that make tires safer . . . longer-wearing!

Vet Educational Facilities To Be Debated On Air

By JEAN MEEGAN (FOR C. E. BUTTERFIELD)

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 — Just what educational facilities are available for veterans will be debated on America's Town Meeting at 7:30 Thursday night over ABC. Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati and Donald Kingsley, director of manpower and veterans affairs will argue that the veterans are getting a square deal in education. The opposition is Dr. Robert B. Stewart, vice-president of Purdue University; and Chat Peterson, legislative representative of the American veterans committee.

In the absence of George V. Denny the debate will be moderated by Houston Peterson, professor of philosophy at Rutgers university where the program will originate.

"Crime Protographer", the Columbia network's adventure series featuring a newspaper lensman based on the famous fiction character, Flash-Gun Casey will be heard at a new time tonight—8:30.

J. M. Velasco Maldana, Bolivian composer-conductor, will direct the NBC orchestra in a program of music of Peru, Brazil, and Bolivia on "Concert of Nations" at 10:30. This will be the first of four appearances he will make on the program. The second is scheduled for August 29.

Community Best For Education, Jaycees Told

Superintendent Of Schools Kopp Speaks On "Juvenile Delinquency

"The community is a greater educational institution than the school," Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools told members of the Junior Association of Commerce last night, as he addressed the regular meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, on the subject of "Juvenile Delinquency."

The speaker evidenced in his remarks, his long years of study and practice in the field of education, and members of the organization, discussing his address after the meeting, termed it "the best discourse on the subject ever heard here."

Kopp mentioned "juvenile delinquency" only twice during his talk, but referred to the single and broader term of "delinquency" numerous times.

He declared that it has been fashionable since about 400 B.C. for people to worry and talk about the behavior of children. Today people talk about "juvenile delinquency" everywhere and many ideas are expressed, he said.

Must Understand Problems

Kopp said it is a fact that crime seems to be committed by more young people than ever before, and that most of the unusual, gruesome and horrible crimes are being committed by juveniles. For this reason, he declared he prefers to look at the question from a standpoint of "crime prevention."

"The community is the school, the greater educational force," he continued. "The home, the church, the movies, the playgrounds, the radio, the school, the people, all make up the community. It is here that children's lives are formed and careers are shaped," he said.

"Every child is and must be treated as a somebody." Too few parents and adults actually know how to treat children or how to handle situations which arise in the daily lives of children, he declared, recommending a program of parent or adult education toward children.

Citing that "everything that happens to a child or to an individual contributes to his character and individuality in later life, Kopp said children and their individual problems must be understood if their development into good citizens is to be aided.

Children's lives are shaped, and their conduct is shaped by influences early in life, Kopp told his audience, explaining that some authorities on the subject believe that "the way a mother first picks up a newly born baby, helps to influence its individuality."

Therefore, he continued, the family situation, illness or poverty in the home, relationship with other children, family quarrels, anxiety of parents, punishment, shabby clothes, literature, movies, radio, and everything that is a part of the average child's life has a direct influence upon his conduct in later years.

Kopp said he firmly believes that reform schools where delinquent children are sometimes sent, do no good and "never reformed anyone." He declared that putting delinquent or neglectful or abusive parents in jail doesn't help either.

Better Environment Needed

He suggested that the enforcement of curfews, in many places has been found a helpful preventative.

But getting at the root of the whole problem of delinquency, the school superintendent declared, "there is only one answer, and that is to eliminate from the community every bad influence.

"Until we eliminate every bad influence we will have delinquency," he emphasized. But he ventured the opinion that the Junior Association of Commerce, nor any other organization in the city would desire or dare to undertake a project so enormous.

Kopp said the most critical time in the development of an individual is in the adolescent age, and it is during this period when children are less understood, when outside or undesirable influence are brought

Bread Prices Drop To 14 Cents A Loaf

The 14½ cent price for a loaf of bread lasted only one day in Cumberland, after George F. Garlitz, President of Western Maryland Independent Retail Food Dealers Association was informed by OPA that the increase was illegal.

Garlitz said yesterday the price was returned to 14 cents per loaf, and would remain there until an interpretation of the Wherry Amendment is handed down.

The grocers added the additional one-half cent increase, Garlitz said, to maintain the 40 per cent margin that has been in effect since August, 1941.

Local grocers were selling bread at two for 29 cents Tuesday to give the customer the benefit of the one-half cent, Garlitz said, but a single loaf was priced at 15 cents.

The retail price of bread was 10 cents until September 1, 1941, when a one-cent increase was made, then in May 1944, another cent was added and the third increase of one cent was added June 3, this year.

Garlitz said the bread cost the retailer 10 cents a loaf and was sold for 12 cents March 31, 1946. This was a profit of 16.6 per cent, he said.

Junior Association Plans Auxiliary Known As Jayncees

Members of the Junior Association discussed plans last night for the formation of a ladies auxiliary, as they met in regular session at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

It was explained by some of the members that similar organizations are a part of Jaycee activity throughout the country, and many cities have large and active auxiliary organizations. The auxiliary is known under the term, "Jayncees."

David Kauffman, president, named a committee to take further action on the idea and report at the next meeting. John T. Fey was appointed chairman.

A partial report was made on the air show, held at Cumberland Municipal Airport Sunday, and members were urged to make reports on ticket sales, so a complete report can be compiled. Kauffman praised the work of the membership on the project and declared it the biggest and best job of its kind ever undertaken and successfully completed here.

C. William Gilchrist, past state and local president reported on the National Jaycee convention held in Milwaukee, Wis., and recommended that the association send three or more members to every national convention.

Announcement was made that the Jaycee picnic will be held Sunday from 4 to 10 p. m. at Cottage Inn, for members and their families. The annual Jaycee Race Week dance will be held August 21, at the Southern Hotel ballroom, for members and their invited guests.

Thomas Gulland, C. Eugene Howell and F. Allan Weatherholt were named to represent the association at a civic traffic and safety meeting to be held in the city hall auditorium Friday night.

Several new members were introduced, and Kauffman reminded the membership that a membership drive is being planned and the organization has a goal to double its present membership before the first of the year.

The meeting was the best attended regular meeting since before the war.

Former Garage Site Suggested For Bus Terminal

Another possible location for Cumberland's bus terminal was suggested yesterday morning, when John Stewart, proposed the Glisan Garage property on North Centre street to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Stewart previously offered the Merchandise Mart on South Mechanic treet, but the site was refued by the bus companies involved. More recently the transportation concerns revealed that they were considering the Laney property on the corner of Frederick and Centre streets, but the Municipal Zoning and Planning Commission spiked further development by condemning the location as impractical for that purpose.

The plan outlined by Stewart to keep buses from entering the center of the city or crossing railroad tracks were described to the Mayor as follows:

Blue Ridge Lines—West to East: South on Mechanic street and through Bow street to the terminal; out the terminal, north on Centre street to the Henderson avenue bridge and then eastward.

Blue Ridge—East to West: In on Henderson avenue to Mechanic and south from the bridge to Bow street and the terminal; out on Centre street.

Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company: South on Mechanic street through Bow street to the terminal; out the terminal on North Centre to Frostburg. (The same routing would apply to Mt. Savage, Ellersile and Hyndman buses.)

Emory Motor Coach Lines: From Keyser to Cumberland street at the Algonquin Hotel, to Market street bridge, to Centre street and the terminal; out of terminal on Bow street and south on Mechanic to Market street, Cumberland street and on to Keyser.

Others Could Use

Miscellaneous lines: Buses from Flintstone, Baltimore Pike, Oldtown Road, Williams Road and Romney could be routed north on Henderson avenue to the bridge, south on Mechanic to Bow and into the terminal. Leaving the terminal they would go north on Centre street to the bridge and east and south thereafter.

"The plan elliminates all of the bus lines, with the exception of city buses, from Baltimore street and from Centre and Mechanic streets south of Market and none of the buses would be required to use a railroad crossing," Stewart states.

"Under this plan passengers from downtown Cumberland would not be required to cross a railroad. The proposed terminals on Henderson avenue would require passengers to walk across the B. & O. tracks at an extreme hazard.

Successor Is Named To Bishop Walsh

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 7. (AP)—The Maryknoll Fathers announced today the election of Bishop Raymond A. Lane of Lawrence, Mass., who spent three years and eight months in a Japanese concentration camp in Manchuria, as their new superior general.

He succeeds Bishop James E. Walsh of Cumberland, Md., who has completed the established term of ten years in office.

Bishop Lane and other Maryknoll fathers were taken into custody at Fushun, Manchuria on Dec. 8, 1941, by Japanese troops. The bishop remained a prisoner until he was liberated on V-J Day, last Aug. 14.

He was consecrated a bishop in St. Mary's church, Lawrence, Mass., on June 11, 1940, after 20 years as a priest, and 17 years of service in the Far East.

Bishop Lane will assume immediately the direction of the work of the Maryknoll Fathers in the Far East, Latin America and Africa, as well as of the Maryknoll Training Houses in the United States.

Traffic Safety Group To Meet Friday Night

ABL Safety Supervisor Calls Meeting In City Hall Auditorium

The first meeting of persons interested in a safety campaign to reduce traffic accidents in Cumberland has been called for 8 p. m. Friday in City Hall Auditorium by Lynn Walker, safety supervisor at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory of the Hercules Powder Company, who is backing the move.

Early in July Walker announced plans for a "high pressure campaign" to reduce the accident toll in the city limits, and he said last night that the intervening time has been required in laying groundwork and obtaining co-operation from organizations in the city.

Mayor Will Attend

Letters were sent to 60 different organizations advising them of this first step by an individual to reduce accidents, and more than one-third of the groups have replied and stated they intend to send representatives to the meeting Friday.

Among those scheduled to attend are Mayor Thomas S. Post, William V. Keegan, commissioner of police and fire, Detective Edwin Lilya and possibly Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman.

The state police are to be represented by First Sgt. John H. Doud or Cpl. C. A. Disney, both of the LaVale barracks.

It is anticipated that an executive or steering committee will be named at the initial session Friday.

May Name Committees

Walker, who has been engaged in industrial safety for the past two years, proposes committees to handle traffic engineering, education and enforcement, and these committees also will be named Friday if conditions warrant it.

In the letter mailed to various organizations, Walker cited the increased number of traffic accidents since January 1, and said the facts "add up to the most serious problem our city has ever faced."

He said he wants the organization to "back up with public approval our local and state police in an all-out drive" to end reckless driving.

LIBERTY CLEANERS AGREE TO INCREASES

The Liberty Cleaners and Dyers, Inc., has agreed upon wage increases of from 6 to 10 cents for its employes, Mrs. Bernadette Trost, president of Local 40, United Laundry Workers, CIO, announced last night.

Mr. And Mrs. A. J. Brotemarkle Entertain 30 At Family Reunion

The descendents of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Brotemarkle—four generations of them—met yesterday at the home of the aged couple, 413 Virginia Avenue, for the first family reunion since 1940.

Mr. Brotemarkle, who is 79, one year older than his wife, welcomed his newest great-grandchild, 1-year-old Edna Brotemarkle to her first reunion and extended birthday congratulations. She marks her first anniversary today. Mr. and Mrs. Brotemarkle and 30 members of the family attended.

Yesterday's reunion was the biggest affair at the Brotemarkle home since the couple marked their golden wedding anniversary June 18, 1940. The mother said 96 persons were entertained that day, and then the New Year's reunion of that year was remembered and she said yesterday was the "biggest reunion ever."

Howard Miller, a grandson, by adoption, who lives in Middleburg, Indiana, brought his wife and four children 475 miles to attend the reunion and boasted that he had traveled the farthest of any present. With the exception of Mrs. Mae Mason, who lives in Ridgeley, W. Va., and Miller, the other descendents at yesterday's reunion were all from Cumberland."

Mrs. Brotemarkle said all the descendents were present excepting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Twigg, and their child, who live in Flintstone. She wasn't quite sure why they hadn't come.

"With that exception," Mrs. Brotemarkle said, "all of my children are here." She named them as Frank Brotemarkle, Clinton Brotemarkle, Jesse Brotemarkle, Wade Brotemarkle and Mrs. Mason.

Of the descendents there were eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Brotemarkle were married in Rush, Md., in 1890 and moved to Cumberland shortly after their wedding. They resided on Columbia street before moving to Virginia avenue.

Blue Cross Members Get More Benefits

Maryland Blue Cross subscribers will receive additional benefits effective immediately, Robert O. Bonnell, president of the Associated Hospital Service of Baltimore, Inc., announced yesterday.

Bonnell summarized the new benefits as follows:

The initial waiting period for maternity benefits provided in "Family" memberships will be only one year for all "Family" subscribers. This reduces from two to one year the initial maternity waiting period for subscribers in groups of 300 or less.

Maternity benefits provided in "Family" memberships issued since Oct. 1942, cease 10 months after a subscriber leaves a group. The new certificate reinstates these maternity benefits after a 14-month waiting period. Formerly, all such maternity benefits ceased 10 months after leaving a group and were not reinstated except by subsequent affiliation with a group.

The $2 per day credit towards hospital expenses incurred after the initial 21-day full benefit period will be provided with one year of membership as the only requirement. The former certificate provided this benefit only if hospital care had not been used during the previous subscription year.

New-born children may be added to "Family" membership certificates immediately upon their discharge from the hospital following delivery. The three-month waiting period, formerly required is eliminated.

UMW Takes Appeal On Jobless Benefits

District 16, United Mine Workers of America, has filed an appeal in circuit court from a decision of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board in denying unemployment compensation to miners during the period from April 1 to May 13 and from May 27 to June 3.

The board's decision was handed down July 18 with Russell S. Davis, board chairman, and Francis Petrott, associate member, upholding findings of a trial examiner that the miners were not entitled to compensation. Joseph P. McGurdy, an associate member of the board, dissented from the opinion. Tuesday midnight was the deadline for filing the appeal.

Davis and Petrott held that the "unemployment of the claimants, together with all other claimants singularly situated, was due to a stoppage of work which existed because of a labor dispute."

In his dissenting opinion McCurdy said he believed the unemployment was not due to a work stoppage resulting from a labor dispute, but that unemployment was due to lack of work. He said the "miners were unable to work after March 31, 1946, as the contract between the operators and the UMW had been terminated; operations ceased upon termination of the existing contract."

At the hearing in city hall here July 3 before Miss Irene Zaccaro, special examiner for the board, the UMW presented several mine workers of different classifications as witnesses.

The George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association and Russell Mining Company contended at the hearing that the miners were out of work due to a labor dispute. Clarence Lippel is attorney for the union.

Mrs. Russell H. Kline received a permit to erect a one-story brick home on the rear of Lot 412 Chestnut street. The structure, to cost $3,000, will be set on a foundation of concrete blocks and the roof will be covered with composition shingles. Work is to be done by George Kroft.

Community Best For Education, Jaycees Told

Superintendent Of Schools Kopp Speaks On "Juvenile Delinquency

"The community is a greater educational institution than the school," Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools told members of the Junior Association of Commerce last night, as he addressed the regular meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, on the subject of "Juvenile Delinquency."

The speaker evidenced in his remarks, his long years of study and practice in the field of education, and members of the organization, discussing his address after the meeting, termed it "the best discourse on the subject ever heard here."

Kopp mentioned "juvenile delinquency" only twice during his talk, but referred to the single and broader term of "delinquency" numerous times.

He declared that it has been fashionable since about 400 B.C. for people to worry and talk about the behavior of children. Today people talk about "juvenile delinquency" everywhere and many ideas are expressed, he said.

Must Understand Problems

Kopp said it is a fact that crime seems to be committed by more young people than ever before, and that most of the unusual, gruesome and horrible crimes are being committed by juveniles. For this reason, he declared he prefers to look at the question from a standpoint of "crime prevention."

"The community is the school, the greater educational force," he continued. "The home, the church, the movies, the playgrounds, the radio, the school, the people, all make up the community. It is here that children's lives are formed and careers are shaped," he said.

"Every child is and must be treated as a somebody." Too few parents and adults actually know how to treat children or how to handle situations which arise in the daily lives of children, he declared, recommending a program of parent or adult education toward children.

Citing that "everything that happens to a child or to an individual contributes to his character and individuality in later life, Kopp said children and their individual problems must be understood if their development into good citizens is to be aided.

Children's lives are shaped, and their conduct is shaped by influences early in life, Kopp told his audience, explaining that some authorities on the subject believe that "the way a mother first picks up a newly born baby, helps to influence its individuality."

Therefore, he continued, the family situation, illness or poverty in the home, relationship with other children, family quarrels, anxiety of parents, punishment, shabby clothes, literature, movies, radio, and everything that is a part of the average child's life has a direct influence upon his conduct in later years.

Kopp said he firmly believes that reform schools where delinquent children are sometimes sent, do no good and "never reformed anyone." He declared that putting delinquent or neglectful or abusive parents in jail doesn't help either.

Better Environment Needed

He suggested that the enforcement of curfews, in many places has been found a helpful preventative.

But getting at the root of the whole problem of delinquency, the school superintendent declared, "there is only one answer, and that is to eliminate from the community every bad influence.

"Until we eliminate every bad influence we will have delinquency," he emphasized. But he ventured the opinion that the Junior Association of Commerce, nor any other organization in the city would desire or dare to undertake a project so enormous.

Kopp said the most critical time in the development of an individual is in the adolescent age, and it is during this period when children are less understood, when outside or undesirable influence are brought

Bread Prices Drop To 14 Cents A Loaf

The 14½ cent price for a loaf of bread lasted only one day in Cumberland, after George P. Garlitz, President of Western Maryland Independent Retail Food Dealers Association was informed by OPA that the increase was illegal.

Garlitz said yesterday the price was returned to 14 cents per loaf, and would remain there until an interpretation of the Wherry Amendment is handed down.

The grocers added the additional one-half cent increase, Garlitz said, to maintain the 40 per cent margin that has been in effect since August, 1941.

Local grocers were selling bread at two for 29 cents Tuesday to give the customer the benefit of the one-half cent, Garlitz said, but a single loaf was priced at 15 cents.

The retail price of bread was 10 cents until September 1, 1941, when a one-cent increase was made, then in May 1944, another cent was added and the third increase of one cent was added June 3, this year.

Garlitz said the bread cost the retailer 10 cents a loaf and was sold for 12 cents March 31, 1946. This was a profit of 16.6 per cent, he said.

Junior Association Plans Auxiliary Known As Jayncees

Members of the Junior Association discussed plans last night for the formation of a ladies auxiliary, as they met in regular session at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

It was explained by some of the members that similar organizations are a part of Jaycee activity throughout the country, and many cities have large and active auxiliary organizations. The auxiliary is known under the term, "Jayncees."

David Kauffman, president, named a committee to take further action on the idea and report at the next meeting. John T. Fey was appointed chairman.

A partial report was made on the air show, held at Cumberland Municipal Airport Sunday, and members were urged to make reports on ticket sales, so a complete report can be compiled. Kauffman praised the work of the membership on the project and declared it the biggest and best job of its kind ever undertaken and successfully completed here.

C. William Gilchrist, past state and local president reported on the National Jaycee convention held in Milwaukee, Wis., and recommended that the association send three or more members to every national convention.

Announcement was made that the Jaycee picnic will be held Sunday from 4 to 10 p. m. at Cottage Inn, for members and their families. The annual Jaycee Race Week dance will be held August 21, at the Southern Hotel ballroom, for members and their invited guests.

Thomas Gulland, C. Eugene Howell and F. Allan Weatherholt were named to represent the association at a civic traffic and safety meeting to be held in the city hall auditorium Friday night.

Several new members were introduced, and Kauffman reminded the membership that a membership drive is being planned and the organization has a goal to double its present membership before the first of the year.

The meeting was the best attended regular meeting since before the war.

Former Garage Site Suggested For Bus Terminal

Another possible location for Cumberland's bus terminal was suggested yesterday morning, when John Stewart, proposed the Glisan Garage property on North Centre street to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Stewart previously offered the Merchandise Mart on South Mechanic treet, but the site was refused by the bus companies involved. More recently the transportation concerns revealed that they were considering the Laney property on the corner of Frederick and Centre streets, but the Municipal Zoning and Planning Commission spiked further development by condemning the location as impractical for that purpose.

The plan outlined by Stewart to keep buses from entering the center of the city or crossing railroad tracks were described to the Mayor as follows:

Blue Ridge Lines—West to East: South on Mechanic street and through Bow street to the terminal; out the terminal, north on Centre street to the Henderson avenue bridge and then eastward.

Blue Ridge—East to West: In on Henderson avenue to Mechanic and south from the bridge to Bow street and the terminal; out on Centre street.

Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company: South on Mechanic street through Bow street to the terminal; out the terminal on North Centre to Frostburg. (The same routing would apply to Mt. Savage, Ellerslie and Hyndman buses.)

Emory Motor Coach Lines: From Keyser to Cumberland street at the Algonquin Hotel, to Market street bridge, to Centre street and the terminal; out of terminal on Bow street and south on Mechanic to Market street, Cumberland street and on to Keyser.

Others Could Use

Miscellaneous lines: Buses from Flintstone, Baltimore Pike, Oldtown Road, Williams Road and Romney could be routed north on Henderson avenue to the bridge, south on Mechanic to Bow and into the terminal. Leaving the terminal they would go north on Centre street to the bridge and east and south thereafter.

"The plan eliminates all of the bus lines, with the exception of city buses, from Baltimore street and from Centre and Mechanic streets south of Market and none of the buses would be required to use a railroad crossing," Stewart states.

"Under this plan passengers from downtown Cumberland would not be required to cross a railroad. The proposed terminals on Henderson avenue would require passengers to walk across the B. & O. tracks at an extreme hazard.

Traffic Safety Group To Meet Friday Night

ABL Safety Supervisor Calls Meeting In City Hall Auditorium

The first meeting of persons interested in a safety campaign to reduce traffic accidents in Cumberland has been called for 8 p. m. Friday in City Hall Auditorium by Lynn Walker, safety supervisor at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory of the Hercules Powder Company, who is backing the move.

Early in July Walker announced plans for a "high pressure campaign" to reduce the accident toll in the city limits, and he said last night that the intervening time has been required in laying groundwork and obtaining co-operation from organizations in the city.

Mayor Will Attend

Letters were sent to 60 different organizations advising them of this first step by an individual to reduce accidents, and more than one-third of the groups have replied and stated they intend to send representatives to the meeting Friday.

Among those scheduled to attend are Mayor Thomas S. Post, William V. Keegan, commissioner of police and fire, Detective Edwin Lilya and possibly Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman.

The state police are to be represented by First Sgt. John H. Doud or Cpl. C. A. Disney, both of the LaVale barracks.

It is anticipated that an executive or steering committee will be named at the initial session Friday.

May Name Committees

Walker, who has been engaged in industrial safety for the past two years, proposes committees to handle traffic engineering, education and enforcement, and these committees also will be named Friday if conditions warrant it.

In the letter mailed to various organizations, Walker cited the increased number of traffic accidents since January 1, and said the facts "add up to the most serious problem our city has ever faced."

He said he wants the organization to "back up with public approval our local and state police in an all-out drive" to end reckless driving.

LIBERTY CLEANERS AGREE TO INCREASES

The Liberty Cleaners and Dyers, Inc., has agreed upon wage increases of from 6 to 10 cents for its employes, Mrs. Bernadette Trost, president of Local 40, United Laundry Workers, CIO, announced last night.

New rates which will go into effect at the local cleaning establishment August 21, will vary from a 63 cent to a $1.10 hourly maximum, the union official said.

The agreement, which will be signed in the near future, will provide for vacations to be taken during the weeks of July 4 and the third week of that month, so that business will not be halted by vacations, Mrs. Trost said. The contract will terminate May 28, 1946, on the same date as the Crystal and Cumberland laundries.

Mr. And Mrs. A. J. Brotemarkle Entertain 30 At Family Reunion

The descendents of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Brotemarkle—four generations of them—met yesterday at the home of the aged couple, 413 Virginia Avenue, for the first family reunion since 1940.

Mr. Brotemarkle, who is 79, one year older than his wife, welcomed his newest great-grandchild, 1-year-old Edna Brotemarkle to her first reunion and extended birthday congratulations. She marks her first anniversary today. Mr. and Mrs. Brotemarkle and 30 members of the family attended.

Yesterday's reunion was the biggest affair at the Brotemarkle home since the couple marked their golden wedding anniversary June 18, 1940. The mother said 96 persons were entertained that day, and then the New Year's reunion of that year was remembered and she said yesterday was the "biggest reunion ever."

Howard Miller, a grandson, by adoption, who lives in Middleburg, Indiana, brought his wife and four children 475 miles to attend the reunion and boasted that he had traveled the farthest of any present. With the exception of Mrs. Mae Mason, who lives in Ridgeley, W. Va., and Miller, the other descendents at yesterday's reunion were all from Cumberland."

Mrs. Brotemarkle said all the descendents were present excepting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Twigg, and their child, who live in Flintstone. She wasn't quite sure why they hadn't come.

"With that exception," Mrs. Brotemarkle said, "all of my children are here." She named them as Frank Brotemarkle, Clinton Brotemarkle, Jesse Brotemarkle, Wade Brotemarkle and Mrs. Mason.

Of the descendents there were eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Brotemarkle were married in Rush, Md., in 1890 and moved to Cumberland shortly after their wedding. They resided on Columbia street before moving to Virginia avenue.

Blue Cross Members Get More Benefits

Maryland Blue Cross subscribers will receive additional benefits effective immediately, Robert O. Bonnell, president of the Associated Hospital Service of Baltimore, Inc., announced yesterday.

Bonnell summarized the new benefits as follows:

The initial waiting period for maternity benefits provided in "Family" memberships will be only one year for all "Family" subscribers. This reduces from two to one year the initial maternity waiting period for subscribers in groups of 300 or less.

Maternity benefits provided in "Family" memberships issued since Oct. 1942, cease 10 months after a subscriber leaves a group. The new certificate reinstates these maternity benefits after a 14-month waiting period. Formerly, all such maternity benefits ceased 10 months after leaving a group and were not reinstated except by subsequent affiliation with a group.

The $2 per day credit towards hospital expenses incurred after the initial 21-day full benefit period will be provided with one year of membership as the only requirement. The former certificate provided this benefit only if hospital care had not been used during the previous subscription year.

New-born children may be added to "Family" membership certificates immediately upon their discharge from the hospital following delivery. The three-month waiting period, formerly required is eliminated.

UMW Takes Appeal On Jobless Benefits

District 16, United Mine Workers of America, has filed an appeal in circuit court from a decision of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board in denying unemployment compensation to miners during the period from April 1 to May 13 and from May 27 to June 3.

The board's decision was handed down July 18 with Russell S. Davis, board chairman, and Francis Petrott, associate member, upholding findings of a trial examiner that the miners were not entitled to compensation. Joseph P. McGurdy, an associate member of the board, dissented from the opinion. Tuesday midnight was the deadline for filing the appeal.

Davis and Petrott held that the "unemployment of the claimants, together with all other claimants singularly situated, was due to a stoppage of work which existed because of a labor dispute."

In his dissenting opinion McCurdy said he believed the unemployment was not due to a work stoppage resulting from a labor dispute, but that unemployment was due to lack of work. He said the "miners were unable to work after March 31, 1946, as the contract between the operators and the UMW had been terminated; operations ceased upon termination of the existing contract."

At the hearing in city hall here July 3 before Miss Irene Zaccaro, special examiner for the board, the UMW presented several mine workers of different classifications as witnesses.

The George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association and Russell Mining Company contended at the hearing that the miners were out of work due to a labor dispute. Clarence Lippel is attorney for the union.
